U'n'I 1966

The tape race, a Student Council project, was particularly successful, netting about $290. Despite the keen competition from the Seniors, the Sophomores bought the most tape.

CARE week, February 12-18, featured money-raising endeavors by all of the classes, resulting in $538.84 being made for donation to CARE. Shown at right is the Seniors' wheel of chance.

The Junior Carnival, held in the gym during a noon-hour, included fortune telling (above), water-balloon throws, a turtle race, a basketball throw, and a concessions stand.

The Sophomores contrived an intricate balance with gifts and pennies for their money-raising project.

The Lemon Drops beat the M & M's in a rousing faculty game for CARE.

The Seniors staged a boys versus girls bake-off and a raffle of Senior services to climax the week's activities. For their respective contributions, the Subs and Freshmen sponsored a clash/bermuda day and the CARE Dance on February 12th in the gym.

Left: Mr. Weller, musical director, with the aid of dialogue director Mr. Pease and choreographer Miss Randolph, helped to make the operetta a big success.

The pastel-costumed Bridesmaids, along with the Bucks and Blades, provided a chorus background for Gilbert and Sullivan's "Ruddigore," presented April 2 and 3.

Right: Robin Oakapple (Mark Bedford) and Rose Maybud (Lynn Weisel) avow their mutual love. On Saturday, Rose was played by Tawney Guyon.

Sir Despard Mergatroyd (Dan Brodsky) sings to Mad Margaret (Kathy Goldwasser). Livia Genise played her role on Saturday.

With the Ancestors in the background, Sir Roderic Mergatroyd (Homer Williams) tries to dodge Dame Hannah's (Sue Scheffelin) saber swinging.

The Jug-a-Lugs, Uni's own jugband, made a command performance at the Senior All-School Party. Entitled "Oriental Orgy," the dance was in the gym on April 30th.

These class presidents, as well as the other class officers, were elected in late April. Front, Tom Stillinger, Freshman; back, left to right, Chuck Yon, Junior; Max Messman, Senior and Noel Salinger, Sophomore. Elected in an earlier election were student Council President and Veep, Dan Brodsky and Bill Marks.

During the second semester, many awards, in addition to those announced at Class Night, were given out to students for various activities. The first of these were art awards won in nationals competition by Mark Bedford, Peter Bodnar, Chris Clayton, Jesse Dixon, Anne Kellogg, and Emi Marks. These were followed by the announcement of Greg Danner and Bill Lazarus as Illinois State Scholarship winners.

Language contests also brought Uni many prizes. In German, Sara Chilton won first and Tim Thornburn third in downstate Illinois for fourth year, Bernard Linsky first and Anne Brighton second in third year downstate Illinois, and Milton Oliver first and Henri Stegemeier third in downstate Illinois for second year. Later, Claudia Gray won first place in Illinois for third year, Ian Jackson won first in the state and regional for third year with outside experience, and Anne Trebilcock won first in the state for fourth year in the AATF French Contest.

Uni also copped many prizes in industrial arts competition. In the state, David Eisen's lamp was rated superior, and the creations of Jeff Dixon, Mike Fischer, and Mike Levine all received honorable mention. The Sub Boys' group project, a Danish modern book rack, gained a rating of outstanding.

At the Star Dance, the G.A.A.-sponsored vice-versa, Jesse Dixon, foreground, was elected king, and his date, Heather Cattell, queen. At left are Chuck Yon, prince, and Barbara Camp, princess. The "Basketball" was March 11th in the Illini Union.

"Hell-Fire and Brimstone," the Sophomore's Spring Fling, sizzled to a climax on April 23rd with the crowning of queen Niky Krausz, king John Beberman, and their court. Couples danced to the music of the In Crowd in the gym.

Friday, May 30th, was the date of Uni's first Fine Arts Festival, which included presentations by the choral groups, a dance sequence, a STAG interpretation of "Spoon River Anthology," and exhibits of art and home economics.

In part of the Dance Club's presentation, the boys gave their impression of a basketball game.

Three Uni students help to load the truck full of their collections for the Tri-High Canned Foods Drive, held on May 7th, in order to help needy families in the community.

Beth Goldhor, left, and Gay Inman, right, display their athletic abilities in the G.A.A. track meet on May 27th. The Sophomores were victors in the meet.

Cheerleading practices, and tryouts on May 11th, resulted in the election of Barbara Camp, Gretchen Filer, Valerie Genise, and Linnea Langebartel for Varsity; and Alice Beberman, Sheryl Hill, Linda Nisonoff, and Lucy Richardson for J.V.

Escorted by Mr. Weller and Mr. Royer, the Madrigals went on tour May 2nd and then May 13th demonstrated their talents to high schools in the Chicago area and Decatur.

Jody Carter, golf team captain (above), and Mark Lavatelli (below), were just two of the reasons for Uni's spectacular season.

Under the sponsorship of Allen Holmes, Uni's golf team had its best season to date, winning eight of ten meets. No opponent was able to beat the Buckeyes twice during the season, and the only losses were to the strong teams of Monticello and Mahomet-Seymour. The top six golfers were Jody Carter, Mark Lavatelli, Jim Costello, Charles Kappauf, John Beberman, and Alan Stevenson.

Cinderman Phil Matthews won the mile in the Champaign County track meet.

Uni High's young track team started slowly but improved greatly during the season. After finishing third in three straight triangular meets, the team won over Mansfield and Potomac, 77-53-25. The Bucks won a delayed dual meet with Rankin which started as a triangular including Deland-Weldon. It was rained out in progress with Uni second. The Bucks closed with a dual meet loss to ABL.

The presentation of awards highlighted the evening. Dan Farber, left, was the co-winner, along with Homer Williams, of the Verdeene Gottlieb U.S. History Award; Jim Payne, center, was chosen Student of the Year; and Kyn Barker, right, was the recipient of the Bausch & Lomb Science Award.

Baccalaureate, held Sunday, June 4th, in Smith Music Hall, featured an address by Reverend John A. Taylor, with the Invocation and Benediction given by Reverend Fredrick S. Arvedson.

Madeleine Grigg gives her impression of a favorite teacher in the Class Night skit "Mill of the Run."

Rob Jackson, in his dazzling coat, was the m.c. for Class Night, held in Latzer Hall on June 3rd. A dinner preceded the festivities.

The Seniors join in a re-creation of Skip Day, a skit in the Class Night Senior Review. Another feature was the Hatchet Oration, with the battle between Senior Curtis White and Junior Dan Farber. A hatchet was also awarded to Sophomore Chuck Yon.

Following the Commencement ceremonies, a reception (above) was given in honor of the graduates in the Illini Union. The graduation exercises, held on Friday, June 10th, included an address by Prof. Webster L. Smalley, a Madrigal performance, and a memorable farewell speech by Senior Class President Kyn Barker. Finally, with orange and blue tassels flipped and diplomas clutched firmly in hand, the graduates marched up the aisle of Smith Music Hall while friends and relatives looked on. Once outside, emotions ranged from sentimental sadness to ecstatic joy.

After final exams, the Seniors unwound at an all-day picnic at Lake of the Woods.

"Paradis Sous la Mer" was the theme of the Prom dance, held June 11th in the Paradise Inn. Anne Brighton was general chairman of the event.

Private parties followed, with one for Juniors at Sam Levine's and the Seniors' at Mark Bedford's. A hayride from three to five was the next item on the agenda.

While a few brave souls (above) braved the icy water of the Urbana Country Club from five to seven, most chose to merely spectate (below).

At the breakfasts, held at Niky Krausz's and Dan Brodsky's, some were still alert and active (above), but others (below) had collapsed after a full night of Prom activities.
