Through the courtesy of the Illio I am pleased to extend greetings to Illini everywhere.

As we move into the second half of the century, we may regard the University of Illinois as firmly established among the leading institutions of higher education in the United States.

We are indeed big — bigger than ever before on the Champaign-Urbana campus, with a total registration of 19,500. Since a total of 20,000 students in full-time residence on this campus approaches a saturation point, it is clear that further expansion can take place only through major additions to the physical plant or through the establishment of a permanent branch. Such a branch, if established, would undoubtedly be in Chicago.

The professional colleges of the University of Chicago enroll over 1,500 students in medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing and the graduate curriculum. In cooperation with the Cook County School of Nursing, the University for the first time in its history is offering a full curriculum in nursing education. The registration at the Chicago Undergraduate Division (Navy Pier) is nearly 4,000; while this may not be regarded as a permanent installation, it is clearly to be one of long standing. It meets a steady demand for public collegiate instruction in the Chicago area.

Nevertheless, bigness, branching and comprehensiveness are not the source of distinction in the University. What we are especially proud of — and we believe that all alumni will share this view — is the steady enrichment of instruction, research and public service. Through extraordinary leadership in the Board of Trustees, backed by generous support in the General Assembly and the State Administration, we have been able to secure clusters of promising teachers and scholars. A new team is being formed and its productivity along a wide cultural front is already evident. Students coming to the University of Illinois in almost any major field will discover opportunities for learning and professional growth that traditionally have been restricted to only a few of our oldest American universities.

Younger than most state universities, the University of Illinois nevertheless cannot be regarded as immature. The foundations are being laid now for a full fruition of its educational growth and achievement by the end of its first century in the late 1960's. May you all be on hand to celebrate that occasion!

As we contemplate the race between education and catastrophe, time is running short. If nations are to learn to live together in peace, the learning must come soon. Perhaps the chief hope is not in foreign offices but in the great centers of learning.

The administration of a great modern university is complex. The University itself is complex, necessarily so because of the many different types of things it must do. The work of a great university like Illinois not only involves teaching, it includes also a tremendous program of research, and it provides many special services for citizens.

Illinois was one of those institutions established nearly a century ago under the then new idea that higher education should be available to all, not only to a favored few. This idea has proved sound. The University has grown constantly, not only in size, but even more in concept and activities, as it has moved forward to meet new needs—and demands—of the people.

When the University opened in 1868, the kind of institution it is today was not dreamed of. Higher education did not extend into the many fields it does today. There were nowhere such laboratories and institutes as we now find on the campus. There was no concept of the many ways in which the citizens of Illinois might be served as they now are.
Illinois has become a leader not only in its teaching and research, but also in carrying its knowledge — old and new — beyond the classroom. Its research findings broaden the boundaries of knowledge. This new knowledge is taken to the citizens through conferences, extension activities, off-campus classes, publications, radio, and other means.

The President of the University is assisted in the administrative duties necessary to this institution by many people. Among them are the Provost; the Vice President in charge of the Chicago Professional Colleges; the Dean of the Chicago Undergraduate division; and the deans and directors who head the various teaching, research, and service units on all the campuses.

Also there are the persons who must be responsible for the finances, for buildings, and for equipment; the Comptroller, Director of the Physical Plant, and others.

To look after the welfare of students outside the classroom — housing, health, activities, employment, and the like — is another group of administrators, the Dean of Students and his staff.

Administrative Officials
Established in 1935, the University of Illinois Foundation is a non-profit corporation organized under the laws of Illinois. Its chief function is to encourage gifts, from both individuals and corporations, for the purpose of assisting the general educational and research program of the University.

One phase of this activity is the Illini Achievement fund, organized in December, 1948, as a permanent annual-gift program in the interests of the University. In 1949 the Achievement fund set a new record among Big Ten schools, and among all midwestern state universities, for the number of gifts to such a program during its first year. The roll of contributors included the names of 5,071 Illini and other friends of the University of Illinois, and members of the class of 1949, who contributed $800 as a senior class gift toward the development of a recreational area for students and faculty members.

Another function of the Foundation is the development of patents assigned to it by the University. Acting in this capacity, the Foundation has acquired patent rights on several inventions, notably a smokeless furnace and an ammoniated dentifrice that helps to combat tooth decay.

The Foundation has a membership of one hundred persons, most of whom are alumni of the University. The present Board of Directors, consisting of nine members, is made up of H. B. Megran, president of the Foundation, Harvard, Illinois; John H. Armstrong, vice president, Champaign; President George D. Stoddard of the University of Illinois, Urbana; Kenney E. Williamson, Peoria; Fred H. Ebersold, Chicago; Albert Penn, Goshen, Indiana; George T. Donoghue, Chicago; Amos H. Watts, Chicago; and Harry F. Glair, Chicago.
The Alumni Association begins where student days end. It is the bond between alumni and their Alma Mater.

As host for the University, the Alumni Association maintains a reception room in the Illini Union Building where alumni are always welcome and may find personalized service. For the use of all Illini, there is a Chicago Center at the LaSalle Hotel. The center consists of a lounge, Chicago headquarters for both the Association and the University Placement Bureau, and other University offices.

The Alumni News, the Association's monthly magazine, goes to more than 60,000 Illini scattered over the world, informing them of campus events and providing news of their classmates and friends.

Aside from maintaining biographical records and addresses for more than 80,000 alumni, it assists Illini throughout the country in organizing Illini clubs and in promoting entertaining and constructive programs.

The Association works with the University's Placement Bureau, assisted in its establishment for the benefit of Illini employers and employees alike.

By having student representatives on the Board of Directors, it fosters better student-alumni relations and cooperates in sponsoring Homecoming, Founders Day, Class Reunions, and other occasions for the benefit of alumni returning to the campus.

The Alumni Association works unceasingly to advance and promote the growth and progress of the University.
The University of Illinois recognizes its responsibility for students living in the academic community and attempts to provide the most favorable conditions for them. Under Dean of Students, Fred H. Turner, who is the unifying and coordinating official, are Associate Dean Harold S. Dawson, Director of Placement, and Assistant Dean Arthur Hamilton, in charge of foreign students.
Since Miriam Shelden, dean of women, has been on active duty in the United States Navy through most of 1949 and 1950, Miss Agnes Tandberg, ordinarily assistant dean for freshman women, has served as acting dean of women. Dean Shelden's other assistants are: Mrs. Florence Inghram, residence hall counselor; Miss Helen Andrews, adviser to independent women and the Women's Group system; and Miss Jane Klein, adviser to sorority women and Panhellenic council.

The staff of the dean of men Edward E. Stafford includes: Mr. Gerald W. Peck, director of student employment and assistant director of placement; Mr. V. J. Hampton, in charge of student organization finances; Mr. Carl M. Grip, adviser to fraternities, and Mr. Richard E. Hulet, adviser to independent men.

For the past four decades, Dean Henry P. Rusk has been a member of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture faculty. Dean Rusk started as an assistant in animal husbandry in 1910, and, after twelve years, advanced to the directorship of the Department of Animal Husbandry. In 1939 he became Dean of the College of Agriculture and Director of the Agricultural Experimental Station of the Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics.

Although he was born on a farm near Rantoul, Illinois, Dean Rusk spent most of his early years on a farm in northern Indiana. There practical farm problems were paramount. In 1908 he received his B.S. degree in agriculture from the University of Missouri and in 1911 received his M.S. from the same institution. He was a member of the staff at the University of Missouri and of the Purdue University Experimental Station the following years before joining the staff on the Illinois Campus. In 1949 Purdue University bestowed on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Dean Rusk is widely known for his unusual knowledge in matters concerning agriculture. He is a member of the Agricultural board of the National Research council. During 1949 Dean Rusk completed an assignment as chairman of the Agriculture Task Force of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branches of the Government and as a member of several important state and national committees dealing with different phases of agriculture, including the National Research council.

The College of Agriculture administered by Dean Rusk is a direct outgrowth of the Morrill act of 1862. The legislation became popularly known as the “land-grant college act,” since it provided federal support for state educational institutions in the form of income from public lands made available to each state. There are 69 land-grant institutions in the United States today, and they provide training for approximately one-fourth of the students enrolled in four-year colleges and universities.

These land-grant colleges, with their associated experiment stations and extension services, have pioneered in a type of education based on scientific research into the problems of fundamental human needs. Established to develop the most practical of all human effort — the production of the primary necessities of life — agricultural colleges have helped to demonstrate that culture may be a by-product of sound educational processes regardless of subject matter.

The colleges of agriculture arrived on the scene after laboratory methods had been introduced to American educators, but it was through the avenue of agriculture and the efforts of Professor Benjamin
Agriculture

Stillman of Yale University that these methods gained entry into American colleges.

A unique feature of the American scheme of agricultural education is the attempt to maintain close integration of agricultural education, research, and extension all along the line from the United States Department of Agriculture to the smallest 4-H Club in the most isolated rural community. This attempt is made through the Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics. The contributions of the colleges of agriculture and associated agencies early won the acceptance and support of the farmers. Industry and commerce soon recognized that they also benefited from the contributions which these institutions are making to our national economy. The aim of the agricultural colleges in the classrooms, in the research laboratories, and on the farms of the state, has been to improve farming and farm family living.
In 1942 he left Iowa to become Chief of the Business Structure Unit in the Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C., and later he served as Chief Economist for the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. As a tax expert he was asked to become a member of the Shoup Mission to Japan in the summer of 1949 and spent two months in that country studying the tax situation.

Immediately preceding his appointment as Dean of the College of Commerce and Business Administration at the University of Illinois, he was an economist with the Irving Trust Company of New York City. Dean Bowen is the author of numerous articles on economic and financial subjects which have appeared in business and professional journals and of a book entitled Toward Social Economy. His fields of specialization lie in finance and business fluctuations.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Economic Association, the National Tax Association, the Royal Economic Society, and other professional societies.

A student who has completed the first two years of general requirements in the College of Commerce has an opportunity to select from a variety of fields for his specialized work of the final two years. He may specialize in accountancy, banking and finance, commerce and law, commercial teaching, economics, industrial administration, management, marketing, or public affairs.

In addition to its undergraduate program, the College of Commerce has two further functions, research and service to business. The Bureau of Economic and Business Research serves the first of these functions, conducting research in marketing, banking and private finance, public finance, taxation, insurance, governmental accounting, and related fields. Results of this research are published in a series of bulletins and also may be reported in the two publications of the Bureau—a quarterly magazine, Current Economic Comment, and the monthly, Illinois Business Review.
The Business Management Service was established in January of 1948 and is engaged in providing educational and technical service to the business community of Illinois. Such service may be in the form of consultations, conferences, bulletins, and extension classes. Staff members are equipped to deal with problems of wholesale and retail merchandising, industrial management, accountancy, and personnel. Through its close association with actual managerial problems confronting small businesses in Illinois, the Business Management Service forms a link between the College and Illinois business concerns.

The College of Commerce, with the fourth largest enrollment of the numerous colleges of the University of Illinois, has organized a Commerce Council in which the various student clubs are represented and through which such groups may coordinate their activities.
College of

Willard B. Spalding, Dean of the College of Education since 1947, is a native of Massachusetts and received his education in New England. As an undergraduate he attended Wesleyan University at Middletown, Connecticut, and Boston University where he received the Bachelor's degree. He holds the Master's degree in education from the University of New Hampshire, and Harvard University awarded him the Doctor of Education in 1942. The honorary degree of LL.D. has been conferred on him by Pacific University.

Dean Spalding has had experience in public school administration as high school principal in several Massachusetts cities, and as superintendent of schools in Belmont, Massachusetts, Passaic, New Jersey, and Portland, Oregon. He held the latter position for three years before coming to the University of Illinois as Dean of the College of Education.

He has taken an active part in the national and state educational program. He has served on the steering committee of the Illinois Secondary School Curriculum program, and in 1949 was a member of Governor Stevenson's advisory commission on school aid.

The author of numerous articles in the educational field, Dean Spalding is also co-author of a textbook entitled Alcohol and Public Affairs. The book is the outgrowth of a course which he organized in Portland to prepare teachers in the presentation of problems concerning the use of alcohol.

The College of Education prepares students for careers in teaching, special educational services, and school administration. Its courses deal with the social, psychological, and philosophical foundations of education; educational guidance and other special services; educational research and evaluation; educational administration; elementary school problems and techniques; secondary school problems and techniques; and the education of exceptional children.

Special undergraduate programs are offered by the College in industrial education, agricultural education, home economics education, and education of the deaf and hard of hearing and of the mentally handicapped. Students preparing for other teaching fields take certain basic courses in education, and the remainder of their work is taken in two or three restricted fields of concentration in other colleges and schools of the University under the Council on Teacher Education. These courses of study are supplemented by practice in teaching under special supervisors in school systems cooperating with the College of Education. The University High School, which serves as a laboratory for this College, affords opportunities for experimentation under controlled conditions.
The Bureau of Research and Service, established in 1918, is operated as a department of the College of Education. Research is carried on by members of the staff and also by graduate students who are preparing theses for advanced degrees. It is the purpose of this Bureau to conduct original investigations in the field of education, to summarize and bring to the attention of school people the results of research done elsewhere, and to be of service to the schools of Illinois.

For the benefit of Illinois educators and lay citizens interested in school problems, the College of Education arranges a number of conferences during the year, both on campus and throughout the state, at which there is opportunity for the exchange of ideas by teachers, administrators, school board members, and frequently students and parents.
Dean of the College of Engineering is W. L. Everitt. His immediate predecessor, M. L. Enger, reached the retirement age last year after more than four decades of service to the University. Dean Enger's contributions to engineering in the fields of mechanics and hydraulics and education were recognized last May by his colleagues, students, and other friends at a public presentation of his portrait to the College of Engineering.

Dean Everitt came to the University of Illinois as head of the department of electrical engineering six years ago, with a nation-wide reputation as a teacher, research scientist, and administrator. A native of the state of Maryland, he holds his degrees from Cornell, University of Michigan, and Ohio State University, where he was associate professor from 1929 to 1934 and full professor for ten years before coming to Illinois. For varied major war services, he received the Exceptionally Meritorious Civilian Award. He is a past president of the Institute of Radio Engineers, a fellow and director of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and is prominent in many other professional organizations. Author of standard textbooks on communication engineering, he is also editor of the Electrical Engineering Series issued periodically by one of the nation's largest technical publishing houses.

The College of Engineering was at first the Polytechnic Division of the Illinois Industrial Institute. Organized in 1870, the Division offered four courses of study — mechanical science and art, civil engineering, architecture and fine arts, and mining engineering and metallurgy.

During the decade that began in 1889 many new departments were established — physics, theoretical and applied mechanics, electrical engineering, architectural engineering, and municipal and sanitary engineering.

Ceramic engineering was transferred to the College of Engineering in 1915 after ten years as a division of the College of Science. The curriculum in engineering physics was offered in 1917, the general engineering curriculum in 1923. In 1925 most of the courses in the municipal and sanitary engineering department were transferred to civil engineering. In 1931, architecture was transferred to the new College of Fine and Applied Arts. Two years later the department of agricultural engineering was set up. The youngest department is aeronautical engineering, founded in 1944.

The first University graduating class included six engineers. Today more than three thousand men and women are seeking undergraduate engineering degrees on the Urbana campus.

The new mechanical engineering and electrical engineering buildings went into service in 1949; the new chemical engineering building, this year.

The College has always stressed extra-curricular activities. A dozen student professional societies are active, most of them affiliated with national professional organizations. There are also eight honor fraternities, a majority of them national, organized primarily to recognize and promote scholarship.

Important extra-curricular roles are played by the Engineering Council, The Illinois Technograph, St. Pat's Ball, and the newly established Engineering Convocation at which outstanding teachers in the College are publicly recognized.

Tied in with teaching is much of the research carried on through the Engineering Experiment Station, oldest of its kind in the country. This experimental station is 47 years old. It has published nearly 400 bulletins, 60 circulars, and 50 reprints. Projects that are now under way total more than 50, a high percentage of the funds being provided by cooperating agencies.
Rexford Newcomb is Dean of the College of Fine and Applied Arts, Director of the Bureau of Community Planning, and Chairman of the Small Homes Council. Dean Newcomb received his formal training at the Universities of Kansas, Illinois, and Southern California. This training was supplemented by travel and research in Europe, the Near East, and the Orient.

Before joining the Illinois faculty, Dean Newcomb served for five years as Director of the Department of Fine and Applied Arts at Long Beach Polytechnic School and for four years as Director of Adult Education and Principal of the Long Beach Evening High School. Following his California experience, Dean Newcomb went to the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas where he served as Professor of Architecture and College architect. He came to Illinois in 1918.

The Dean is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, past president of the Institute's Central Illinois Chapter, and past president of the American Society of Architectural Historians. He was a member of the Illinois State Planning Commission under Governors Horner and Green. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Phi Kappa Phi, and various other honorary and professional societies.

Dean Newcomb has written and lectured widely in the field of the fine arts. He is the author of seventeen volumes and of several hundred magazine articles in this field. For ten years he was editor of the Western Architect, and for twenty-five years he has served as a technical consultant in various connections.

The Fine Arts were early recognized at the University of Illinois. Doctor John Milton Gregory, president of the University, made provision for instruction in drawing and music in his first curricular proposals and soon employed instructors in these fields. The resulting course offerings in time made possible curricula in art, architecture, and music. To these, in 1907, a curriculum in landscape architecture was added. In 1931 the departments administering these curricula were organized as the College of Fine and Applied Arts with Rexford Newcomb as the first dean. In 1934 the Bureau of Community Planning, offering extension service in city planning, was established. More recently a course in occupational therapy has been included.

This year the college enrolled a peak load of 1,389 professional students with several hundred others coming from other colleges of the University for one or more courses in the Fine Arts. While the instruction of the College is scattered in some eleven campus buildings, its departmental headquarters are housed in the Architecture Building, Mumford Hall, and Smith Memorial Hall where excellent studios, drafting rooms, and musical equipment, together with well-appointed libraries in art, architecture, landscape architecture, and music, are located.

The School of Music, headed by Director John Kuyper, offers an extensive activity program including three orchestra groups: the University Orchestra, consisting of about eighty student and faculty members, the Sinfonietta, composed of faculty and selected student musicians, and the Repertory Orchestra, of approximately forty players. In addition, there are several choral organizations under the direction of the music faculty. Membership in many of these groups is open to residents of the community as well as to all students and members of the faculty and staff of the University.

In addition to its varied instructional program, the College offers annually many free lectures, concerts, and recitals, as well as a constantly changing series of art exhibits. The College, cooperating with other university departments, sponsors during the month of March an Annual Festival of Contemporary Arts. All students in the University may participate in the musical organizations and extracurricular events fostered by the College.
Administration of the affairs of the Graduate College is at present in the hands of Dean Louis N. Ridenour and his assistants. Dean Ridenour came to Illinois in 1947 from the University of Pennsylvania, where he had been a professor of physics. He did his undergraduate work at the University of Chicago, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and editor of The Daily Maroon, and he obtained the Doctor of Philosophy degree at California Institute of Technology. His career in teaching and research has been carried on at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton University, and the University of Pennsylvania. During the war years Dean Ridenour was a staff member and Assistant Director of the Radiation Laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where much of the relatively recent research and development work on radar was conducted. He served overseas as a radar advisor to the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, and was decorated with the Bronze Star and the President’s Medal for Merit. A twenty-seven volume series of books making available to government and industry the progress resulting from wartime work on radar at the Radiation Laboratory was edited by Dean Ridenour.

Dean Ridenour’s assistants in the graduate office are Assistant Dean J. R. Smiley, of the French Department, Helen M. Hay, Assistant to the Dean, and Emily S. Simmons, Assistant Dean of Graduate Students.

The Graduate College is in charge of all postbaccalaureate educational activities of the University, except for the professional work in Law and Medicine. Its enrollment has steadily climbed over the years, and has risen farther and faster after the end of World War II than have the enrollments in other colleges of the University. In the fall of 1949, more than 3300 students were enrolled in the Graduate College, an increase of 16 per cent over the fall of 1948, of 38 per cent over the fall of 1947, and of 210 per cent over the fall of 1941, the last “normal” pre-war semester.

Formal graduate instruction at the University began in 1892, and a Graduate School with a separate faculty was first organized in 1906. David Kinley, later President of the University, was the first graduate Dean. In 1907, the General Assembly of Illinois made an appropriation of $50,000 specifically for the support of graduate work, thus becoming the first State legislature to appropriate funds for graduate education and research.

As the size and scope of the general activities of the University of Illinois have increased, the Graduate College has increased with them. The sum available during the current year for supporting graduate fellowships alone was three times the total appropriation for the Graduate College forty years ago. Yet the proportion of the total University Appropriation devoted to graduate work has declined steadily. Despite the fact that the Graduate College is now the second largest college in the University, its 1949-50 budget was less than 2 per cent of the over-all University budget; in 1907, when graduate work was first separately organized, the graduate budget was over 8 per cent of the total University budget.

Even though the Graduate College has grown tremendously during the past decade, its essential aim is still that stated by Dean Kinley a generation ago: “the development of the power of independent work and the promotion of the spirit of research.” The student pursuing extended work in graduate study is expected to gain a well-rounded knowledge of his field and related subjects and to acquire the power of furthering the range of known material in his own specialty.
Professor Fredrick S. Siebert, director of the School of Journalism, is a native of Minnesota. He received his A.B. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1923, and his J.D. degree from the University of Illinois in 1929.

Professor Siebert joined the journalism staff when the School was established in 1927, and became director of the School in 1941. He has been a staff member of the Hibbing Daily News, the Duluth Herald, the Chicago City News Bureau, and the old Chicago Herald and Examiner. He was associate editor of the Journalism Quarterly from 1927 to 1930 and a member of the Board of Editors of that publication from 1930 to 1948.

A member of the Illinois bar, Director Siebert is the author of a textbook and a number of articles dealing with the rights and privileges of the press and radio. He is chairman of the Law of the Press Committee of the Inland Daily Press Association, secretary-treasurer of the American Council on Education for Journalism, and a member of the United States Wage and Hour Committee for the publishing industry.

He has been president of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, secretary of the Illinois Press Association, and chairman of the Council on Radio Journalism.

The primary objective of the School of Journalism is to train men and women who are competent, both in professional training and personal integrity, to assume professional responsibilities in the press, radio, and advertising. The keynote of all journalism training at the University is obligation and responsibility—obligation to the reader or listener, and responsibility for keeping the press and radio, as one Illinois publisher puts it, "good as well as free."

This training strives to produce men and women who are prepared to cope with the highly complex world in which they must function. Toward this end, students in the School of Journalism are required to take from one-third to one-half of their junior and senior years in advanced social studies. Such studies are selected by the student, in conference with a journalism staff member, from political science, history, economics, and other non-journalism offerings of the University.

In working toward this primary objective, the School does not neglect a secondary objective: service to Illinois press and radio. Through its faculty and cooperating members, the School of Journalism attempts to provide auxiliary services to the communications industry. It works in close cooperation with the Illinois Press Association, the Illinois College Press Association, and the Illinois State High School Press Association. In addition, the School sponsors clinics and short courses for photographers, radio personnel, advertising personnel, and editors.
Journalism

Training in journalism at the University was begun in 1902 as a part of the courses in English. The School was established in 1927 from what had been a division in the department of English. In its new and modern quarters in Gregory Hall, the School trains future journalists with modern equipment. In the building are located the journalism library, one of the largest and best in the nation, radio classrooms and broadcasting studios, photography and photo-engraving rooms, a printing laboratory, a copy-desk room, and advertising layout laboratories.

Members of the instructional staff of the School of Journalism are men and women who, in addition to academic preparation, are qualified by professional experience to work with and advise young men and women who plan to follow a career in journalism and its allied fields.
For fully half of its existence as a division of the University, the College of Law has been under the direction of Dean Albert J. Harno. He came to the University in 1921 and became dean in 1922. Since that time the College has increased greatly in size and in national reputation, and Dean Harno has become a leader in the field of criminal law and in legal education. He has held offices in the national and state bar associations, in the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws, in the American Law Institute, and in the American Judicature society. At the present time he is secretary of the Council of the Survey of the Legal Profession, which is making an extensive examination of the practice of law and of the qualifications and accomplishments of lawyers; Dean Harno is in charge of the legal education phase of the Survey. He is also a member of the Advisory Committee on Revision of the Statutes of the State of Illinois, under appointment of the Governor.

Dean Harno was born in Holabird, South Dakota, on January 30, 1889. He spent his boyhood in South Dakota and was graduated from Dakota Wesleyan University in 1911. He received his law degree, magna cum laude, from Yale Law School in 1914 and was admitted to the practice of law in California, practicing there from 1914 to 1917. In 1917 he was appointed Dean of the Law School at Washburn college and remained there until 1919. He was professor of law at the University of Kansas between 1919 and 1921, leaving there to join the faculty of the University of Illinois, first as professor of law and later as dean. He also served as provost of the University from 1931 to 1944. Dean Harno holds honorary degrees from Dakota Wesleyan University, Tulane University, and Boston University, and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The College of Law was established in 1897, when Dr. Andrew Draper was president of the University and the Honorable John Altgeld was Governor of the State of Illinois. Dr. Draper was the first dean of the college. In 1940 the Law building was renamed Altgeld hall in honor of Governor Altgeld and in commemoration of his interest and aid in founding law training at the University.

The primary purpose of the College of Law is to train men and women for the practice of law. This training, however, is also indicated for those who will become business executives and government administrators. On a different plane from its vocational aspects, law training is of value to leaders in public thought and in community service. At this time, when the concepts of "freedom," "democracy," and "justice" are and should be uppermost in the minds of thoughtful men, the College of Law conceives as its highest responsibility the task of impressing upon its students the fact that democracy is founded in justice and that freedom is rooted in law.

The College is approved by the two accrediting agencies for law schools in the country. It is a charter member of the Association of American Law Schools and was on the first list of schools approved by the American Bar association. In fact, the standards of the College have reached not only the minima stated by these agencies but have always exceeded them. The College takes pride in the fact that it has been ever alert to improve its own program and has been a pioneer among the law schools of the nation for higher standards — standards leading toward greater excellence of faculty and student bodies, greater breadth and intensity of programs, and deeper inculcation of cultural and ethical values.
Henning Larsen, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, also serves as Professor of English. His field of specialization is Germanic philology with emphasis on Old English and Old Norse. In recent years this interest has extended also to the study and collection of Norwegian folklore. The first incentive to this study came from his boyhood environment. Larsen, the son of immigrant parents, was born and raised in Decorah, Iowa. His father, an alumnus of the University of Oslo, was the first president of Luther college, an institution organized in Civil War days by Norwegian immigrants to foster a liberal education with a Norwegian and Christian background. Here he gained his first training, supplemented by graduate work at the State University of Iowa, the University of Oslo, and Princeton university. As a teacher he has served at the universities of Iowa, Texas, and Illinois, besides holding summer appointments at Chicago, Stanford, North Carolina, and Northwestern.

His academic work was twice broken by war. In 1917, after completing the course in the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the infantry. After serving with the 33rd and 76th divisions, he was transferred to military intelligence work and stationed at the legation in Oslo, Norway, as Assistant to the Military Attache. In 1944, he served a tour of duty in Washington with the Office of Strategic Services.

Our University was incorporated in 1867 as the Illinois Industrial University. When instruction began in 1868, typical liberal arts courses were offered. The present organization of the College came in 1913 as the result of a merger of the College of Literature and Arts with the College of Science. As an outgrowth of this fusion, the College became the largest and most complex division of the University. The complexity is increased by the fact that the College serves many purposes. It is the bearer of the old tradition of liberal education cared for in the general curriculum and also in the Division of General Studies. The general curriculum leads to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science, depending upon the field of concentration and emphasis of study. The college also functions as a service unit for other colleges, offering fixed curricula in pre-professional training for medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, law, and journalism. This training includes such work in English, foreign language, science, and social science as constitutes established all-university or special college requirements.

In cooperation with the College of Medicine, the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a professional course in occupational therapy leading to a degree in the College of Medicine. Fourteen fixed curricula lead to the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degrees in the teaching of specific subjects. Other curricula lead to the professional degrees in chemistry and in chemical engineering.

The pre-professional work also aims to give that general education necessary for the college graduate to achieve a proper understanding of and adjustment to the complexities of modern life. The college offers these approaches to various professional schools and colleges in order to aid the student in orienting himself both in his profession and in the increasingly complicated experiences which confront today’s college graduate.

The administration is in the hands of a dean who is the intermediary between the president and the faculty, on the one hand, and between the faculty and the students on the other. The assistant deans give their time almost exclusively to counseling students on scholastic and educational problems.
Robert B. Downs came to the University of Illinois as Director of the Library and Library School in 1943. A native of North Carolina, he has been active in the library profession for the past twenty-five years. His first experience in the field was at the University of North Carolina, where he worked as an assistant while attending the University. After graduation in 1926, he entered Columbia University and received professional library degrees in 1927 and 1929. In the meantime, he was on the staff of the New York Public Library. From 1929 to 1931, Downs was librarian and assistant professor of bibliography at Colby College in Maine. Some years later the College honored him with a Doctor of Literature degree. Returning in 1931 to the University of North Carolina, he became assistant librarian and, after one year, librarian and professor of library science.

While teaching in his home state, Director Downs started a general college library and encouraged recreational reading by installing a book store in the library building and arranging for weekly talks by authors and critics. In 1949, the University of North Carolina conferred upon him the Doctor of Laws degree.

In 1938 Downs was appointed to the Directorship of Libraries at New York University, a new position created to integrate the University’s widely distributed libraries. After serving for five years as Director of Libraries for New York University, he came to the University of Illinois in 1943.

Downs is active in various professional organizations. He is a fellow in the American Library Institute, a member of the American Library Association Council and the Bibliographical Society of America. He was president of the Association of Colleges and Reference Libraries in 1940-41. He is also the author of numerous books and articles. In 1948, at the invitation of the Department of the Army and the Japanese Government, he spent several months in Japan organizing a national library.

The University of Illinois Library School was established in 1893, making it the oldest library school west of the Alleghenies. At the beginning, the new school was located at the Armour Institute of Technology in Chicago, but in the summer of 1897 it was moved, equipment, faculty, and students, to the University of Illinois in Urbana, where it is now located on the third floor of the library. The library as present ranks third in size among American university libraries and first among state university libraries; the library school ranks as one of the outstanding library schools in the land. The Library School is rated by the American Library Association as one of the five leading institutions in the field and offers education for librarianship on the highest professional level.
The purpose of the Library School is to prepare men and women for careers as professional librarians in all types of libraries. The program of the school is designed to fulfill this purpose by preparing administrators and assistants for service in libraries of such types as public, school, college, and university libraries, and such special types as hospital, newspaper, business, art, music, scientific, law, and map libraries.

Programs of study on both the undergraduate and graduate level may be followed. The group of undergraduate courses, for which the B.S. in L.S. degree is awarded, is considered to be basic preparation for advanced professional studies. The fifth year's work, for the M.S. in L.S. degree, is the minimum academic preparation for professional librarianship, while experienced librarians of marked ability may go on for the degree of Doctor of Library Science.
Director of Physical Education at the University of Illinois, Seward Charles Staley, was born in Sprakers, New York, on August 1, 1893. Mr. Staley was graduated from Springfield College in 1917. After serving as an officer in the United States Army, he attended Clark University where he secured his master's degree in 1920. Staley joined the faculty of the University of Illinois in 1922 and in 1937 was made the director of the School of Physical Education. He has been a member of the staff of the School of Physical Education continuously since that time. In 1929 he was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in education.

Director Staley has made three trips abroad to study physical education and sports. In the course of these travels, he has visited most of the countries in Europe plus others in north Africa and eastern Asia. In 1936, Dr. Staley was the head of the American delegation to the Sports Student Congress in Berlin. He was made an Honorary Fellow by the American Physical Education Association in 1938; he was elected to membership in the American Academy of Physical Education in 1944. In addition, he holds membership in many national, midwest, state, and local physical education associations and societies. During World War II he served as a consultant on physical fitness and recreation with Army Ground Forces, the Army Air Force, and the Navy.

The School of Physical Education was established by action of the Board of Trustees in 1933. At the present time, the School is composed of two departments: Physical Education for Men and Physical Education for Women.

The School's major function is to provide professional training for students entering the general fields of physical education, health education, and recreation. At the present time the School offers five special training curricula: physical education for men; physical education for women; health education, open to both men and women; recreation, open only to men; and dance, open only to women.

One of the more distinctive features of the School's program in professional training is its work in counseling and guidance. The School has always carried on some work in this field, but it has increased greatly. The present program is designed to cover personal, educational, scholastic, and professional problems.

In addition to the professional training work mentioned above, the School conducts a service program in physical education for the general student body. By university regulations all undergraduate students are required to secure four semesters' credit in this subject. This program is carefully designed to meet all types of student needs, from basic physical conditioning and correction of physical handicaps to courses in recreational and team sports.

Among several enterprises of major significance developed by the School in recent years, the one which perhaps has attracted widest attention is its research work in the area of normal physical fitness. This program is pioneering new lines of study. The laboratory set up in connection with this project is one of the finest physical education work shops in the world.

To carry on its work, the School has at its disposal a varied assortment of facilities. The men's program is carried on in two buildings, the George Huff Gymnasium and the Men's Old Gymnasium. The women's program is centered in the Women's Gymnasium, but also uses quarters in Bevier Hall. The University also has one of the largest collections of physical education books in the country.
Dr. Robert G. Bone, the Director of the Division of Special Services for War Veterans, has been associated with this University since 1931, when he entered Graduate School. He is a descendent of pioneer families who settled in central Illinois about one hundred and thirty years ago. Born and raised in Springfield, he was graduated from high school in 1924. He was graduated with an A.B. degree in 1928 from the College of Wooster. Between that time and 1931 he taught in the American College of Alexandria, Egypt. Dr. Bone has spent a number of years and quite a few summers in Europe and the near East. He has attended classes at a number of European universities and has a certificate from the University of Freiburg-im-Breisgau.

Dr. Bone, a member of the History Department of the University since 1934, received his Ph.D. degree in 1937. In 1942 he was granted leave of absence to join the Air Corps. After helping in the training of pilots in Texas for two years he was sent to Europe on the staff of the Theatre Headquarters Army University Centers Section where he spent eight months in France, eight in England, and four in Germany, returning to the University in 1946. Dr. Bone is now Associate Professor of History, and Director of the Division of General Studies, as well as Director of the Division of Special Services for War Veterans.

Realizing that a great number of veterans would be flocking back to the campus following the war's end, the Board of Trustees and the University Administration anticipated the problem involved. Realizing the great sacrifice of time and educational opportunities which so many veterans had made, the University was eager to expedite the educational procedures for the veterans in order that they might get the best possible education in the shortest time. The Division of Special Services for War Veterans, which was established, is the University’s answer to the specific question, “What can we do to be of greatest service to veterans who wish to come to the University of Illinois?” It is a pioneering educational venture, breaking traditional educational policies, and allowing for an educational freedom which will best serve the needs of individual students.

The Division offers veterans an opportunity to move directly toward an educational objective by adding appropriate subjects to previously acquired credit, and to attain an educational objective which involves subject matter offered in several colleges. Accordingly the Division administers the educational programs of veterans whose special needs are not met by existing curricula, and can certify such students for the Bachelor of Science degree. Special consideration is given to helping veterans plan a special program of studies to prepare them for their anticipated goal. Extensive use is made of the Testing Bureau and its tests and counselors in checking the vocational goal. All new students and those with probationary status are given appointments with counselors.

Because of the four thousand married veterans there is a Married Veterans' Service Office and a Veterans' Nursery School with eight full-time teachers and a nurse. A Hobby Shop has been set up with all kinds of machine equipment from sewing machines to a power saw. Dr. Bone is assisted by Mr. F. A. Bridgewater, in charge of administration and the clerical staff; Mr. E. T. Sanford, in charge of records and Veterans Administration forms; Dr. Janet Smith, Director of the Nursery School; Mrs. Walleah G. McArthur, Director of the Married Veterans' Service Office; Mr. John H. Lentz, Supervisor of the Hobby Shop; and Mr. T. J. Nugent, Counselor for the Paraplegics.
Division of University

The Division of University Extension for the University of Illinois has been under the administration of Dean Robert B. Browne since it was established in 1933. Dean Browne was born in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, on July 15, 1894. He was graduated from the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale and received his advanced degrees at the University of Illinois. After thirteen years of experience in both private and public schools as a classroom teacher, principal, and superintendent, he joined the faculty of the University of Illinois in 1929 as an instructor in education. He initially served as Assistant Dean in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences before becoming the first administrative officer of the Division of University Extension in 1933. In 1938 he was also put in charge of the summer session and is at this time a Professor of Education.

Dean Browne, besides being a member of several professional societies, is a member of several other educational groups, including the Examining Board for Teachers and the State Commission for Handicapped Children. On this campus his chief interests lie in the Senate Committee on Student Discipline, of which he is chairman at the present time.

The Division of University Extension is the agency of the University responsible for the educational program addressed to the people of the state who are not enrolled as students in residence on any of its campuses. The larger part of the Extension offerings are made through extramural classes and correspondence courses. Some are college credit courses; others yield no credit toward a degree. Like the Graduate College, the Division is an all-University organization, making use of the faculties of all colleges and schools.

Most of the Extension programs result from requests to the Division, coming from individuals, business and industrial organizations, associations, state and local governmental agencies, and labor groups. The Division is able to respond to fewer than half the demands that come to it each year.

This fall 54 credit courses and non-credit classes have already been scheduled. It is expected that the total enrollment will be in the neighborhood of 4200.

One hundred seven correspondence courses of college level are available for those whose circumstances compel them to home study. Since the establishment of the Division of University Extension, 13,004 students have been enrolled in 16,463 correspondence courses. Last year many veterans and armed services personnel were enrolled under contracts with the Armed Forces Institute and Veterans Administration.

With the assistance of the various colleges and schools of the University, the Division conducts a large number of short courses and conferences. The Division has a special section of Music Extension.
whose staff members are occupied with the development and improvement of music education in Illinois, particularly with youth groups. This section has scheduled a number of string clinics and workshops, as well as specific and spot guidance services. The section works with community music groups and attempts to help them to help themselves.

The Division has an excellent library of educational motion pictures and classroom teaching films, which are loaned to the schools and civic groups of the state. The Visual Aids Service of the Division services the University's own teaching departments in increasing use of classroom films. The library in the Division is regarded as one of nation's leading educational film lending libraries.
Dean Robert Graham, a member of the University of Illinois faculty since 1917, was appointed as the first dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine in 1945.

Dean Graham, born at Ames, Iowa, studied veterinary medicine at Iowa State College, where he was awarded the doctor of veterinary medicine degree in 1910. Two years later he was awarded the bachelor of science degree from the University of Kentucky. While at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment station, as head of the Department of Animal Pathology, he served as veterinarian to the state board of health and as pathologist to the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

As a scientific writer, Dean Graham has been chief or contributing author of more than 150 scientific papers pertaining to veterinary medicine, and senior or co-author of more than 50 bulletins and circulars on the control of animal diseases.

Colleagues in his field credit Dean Graham with significant and outstanding contributions to the knowledge of more than 13 diseases of domestic animals. His memberships include the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Public Health Association, Illinois Academy of Science, American Veterinary Medical Association and the United States Livestock Sanitary Association.

The program of the College of Veterinary Medicine is designed to aid the livestock industry by controlling animal diseases and also to protect the public health through the suppression of animal diseases communicable to man.

Established officially by the Board of Trustees in June 1944, the College of Veterinary Medicine initiated a two-year pre-veterinary program in September 1945. The first professional class of 24 students was admitted in September 1948, and a second similar class in September 1949. At present all veterinary students are veterans.

The curriculum leading to the degree of doctor of veterinary medicine (D.V.M.) requires at least two years of pre-veterinary work and four years of professional training. At the end of the second professional year, veterinary students may qualify for the bachelor's degree. In addition to its professional under-graduate courses, the College also offers graduate courses leading to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees. Three non-professional courses are also offered to students in the College of Agriculture.

The 1949 General Assembly appropriated funds to construct the basic science unit, the first of two new buildings planned for the College of Veterinary Medicine. In this building the first two years of the curriculum will be taught and research will be carried on. The three-story structure will be located east of the Dairy Manufactures building on the south side of Peabody Drive. The second building will house the veterinary hospital and clinics.

At present, veterinary students are being trained in the remodeled Veterinary Pathology Laboratory on the South campus and in a former residence at 805 West Pennsylvania Avenue, Urbana. Only small classes can be accepted until the two new buildings are completed.

To provide the animals used in teaching clinical veterinary medicine, the College maintains a small animal clinic, a large animal clinic, and an ambulatory clinic. Veterinarians and farmers of the state may submit animals to these services for diagnosis and treatment. The laboratory diagnostic service for animal diseases is also used in the teaching program. The people of the state benefit from the valuable service, and students of the College gain practical experience in working with the animals.

Chicago Professional Colleges

With the completion of the first half of this century, the University of Illinois' Chicago Professional Colleges once again can be proud of its many achievements. Notable contributions have been made during this period in teaching, research, and services to the people of the state—the three primary objectives of the Chicago Professional Colleges.

The 1949-50 year was no exception. The number of students enrolled in undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate courses continued to increase. It is particularly noteworthy that a new media of education, transmission of courses by telephone, was explored successfully by the College of Dentistry.

Research contributions were many. Approximately 455 separate research studies were conducted by members of the faculty during the past year.

The silver anniversary of the Illinois Research and Educational Hospitals was celebrated on April 1, 1950. From its meager start, the institution has achieved recognition as one of the most outstanding of its kind in the nation. Some 189,000 visits now are being made to its 24 outpatient clinics each year, while an additional 7,000 receive bed treatment.

Looking ahead to the future, the Chicago Professional Colleges will continue to expand and improve its many functions. Although we are justly proud of our present contributions to the welfare of the people, we are not justified in measuring the achievements in terms of what we are doing. Rather, we should measure these achievements in terms of what we can and should do.

Recent Developments in Medicine and Allied Sciences

Improvements in surgical technique, better understanding of the antibiotics, diabasic ammonium salts to help fight tooth decay, and the dissemination of scientific information to thousands of dentists by gigantic telephone hook-ups are only highlights of the scientific firsts that are continually emerging from the Chicago Colleges. This list of distinguished contributions is being added to almost daily. Even as we go to press the announcement has just been made that research workers at the school have for the first time solved a scientific enigma which is decades old—the site and mechanism of aspirin. Because it acts to stimulate the cortex of the adrenal gland, a new ray of hope appears for the relief of suffering of the country's seven million arthritics.

College of Dentistry

Dentistry, during the century of greatest change in biologic and physical sciences, has progressed both as a science and an art.

The profession has acquired new tools for the study of disease, new materials and techniques for treatment, new knowledge for prevention. It has utilized discovery of the role of microorganisms in disease, the technique of aseptic procedures, the roentgen ray and anaesthetics. New materials and techniques used with appreciation of anatomic and physiologic principles now contribute to the prolongation of the social usefulness of many people through the restoration and maintenance of health, appearance and self-respect.

Recognition of the importance of anatomic and physiologic considerations has led to such changes in education and to such activity in research that dentistry today is making worthwhile contributions to the field of knowledge common to the health professions, and stands as an integrated part of these professions in contrast with its former role as a craft.

Some 7,000 dentists in 39 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada heard the first session of the University of Illinois' post graduate course which was transmitted by telephone.
The Student Council of the School of Dentistry is composed of three representatives from each of the four classes and the president-elect of each class. All representatives are elected by ballot by each of the respective classes.

During the school year the Dental Student Council meets on an average of once monthly to integrate student-faculty relationships with the aim of smoother organization and management of the School of Dentistry.

Dean Allan G. Brodie has cooperated fully with the Student Council in the administration of student problems.

The progress made in medicine during the last 50 years has all but dwarfed all progress made until that time. The 20th century will be well deserving of the title “the Golden Age of Medicine,” for during this period the whole countenance of mortality has been changed so that man may now enjoy almost ten more years of life expectancy and his children may look forward to even more than that.

When one considers that one out of every five physicians in the country has some part of his training in Chicago’s West Side Medical Center, the position of leadership and influence of the College of Medicine cannot be disputed, and with the never-ending enlargement of facilities and staff, one can scarcely anticipate the progress toward eradication of sickness and suffering that such an institution will offer to the people during the next 50 years.
Medical Progress

With common sense and strong moral fibre, with the keenness of his five senses: sight, touch, hearing, smell and taste — coupled with a personal understanding of his patients as individuals and knowing their daily lives, the physician of yesterday nobly performed his task.

Today’s physician, be he general practitioner or specialist, has the tremendous added advantage of having the instruments and scientific mental acumen of all the basic sciences to assist him in making a more exacting diagnosis and thereby enabling him to administer proper therapy.
Medical Student Council

The College of Medicine Student Council is composed of elected representatives of each class, including: the president, three regular and one alternate council members. This Council represents the students in those affairs pertaining to welfare of the entire student body, whereas the individual class officers represent specific groups in purely class activities. The Student Council sponsors the annual "Raymond B. Allen Instructorship Awards" which acknowledges superior instruction in each of the four academic classes.

Alpha Omega Alpha

Alpha Omega Alpha is the national medical honor society, membership in which is based upon scholarship. It was founded by Dr. William W. Root at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago, then the Medical Department of the University of Illinois, on August 25, 1902. It is the only order of its kind on this continent. At the present time charters have been granted to fifty chapters in medical schools in the United States and Canada.

Pi Kappa Epsilon has been an active honorary fraternity at the University of Illinois since 1921. The objects of this fraternity are to further the advancement of medicine and medical education through social intercourse, intelligent thought and discussion of medicine and medical problems and their related scientific, socio-economic and social endeavors. Membership includes male students from the seven medical fraternities and the Independents. Election is by vote of all members of the sophomore class.

The University of Illinois College of Medicine is foremost in its interest to attract women to the profession and break down old prejudice and discrimination against women doctors. It is interesting to note that this year marks the 100th anniversary of the graduation of the 1st woman doctor, Elizabeth Blackwell, who later practiced and distinguished herself at home and abroad. In women, a free mind and nimble finger work together as one, not to mention their intuition and mother instinct.

From these small beginnings today, we have over 10,000 women physicians with a rich future for greater expansion and inclusion in the professions concerned with the alleviation of human ills—mental as well as physical—functional as well as organic.

College of Pharmacy

Pharmacy is recognized today as a public health profession, and its practice is regulated by law for the protection of the public. The pharmacist represents an all important link between the physician and the patient in his understanding and compounding of the doctor’s prescription. He is a professional man trained in bacteriology, physiology, pharmacology, analytical and organic chemistry, and some 20 other arts and sciences pertaining to the practice of the profession. Such thorough training has not always been required. In the earlier years, as little as six months training with a limited curriculum of four basic subjects constituted the educational requirements.

This advancement in educational standards has been closely paralleled by similar advancement in practice of pharmacy. Consequently, drug therapy has emerged from the cure-all era of yesterday to the direct therapy of today.

Independent Men’s Professional Organization

IMPO, as the organization is commonly known on the Chicago Campus, is a group of students working to promote good will among the members of the Health Professions, and to foster business and professional ethics. This is being accomplished by bringing leading men in related fields for lectures to the entire campus.

An alumni association has been formed. Plans are under way for affiliation with the National Association of Independent Men.

American Pharmaceutical Association

The Student Branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association was organized as an individual chapter in the College of Pharmacy, operating under the auspices and leadership of the nation-wide American Pharmaceutical Association. Many similar chapters exist in other colleges of pharmacy, all of them linked in mutual association with the senior organization. The primary aims of the branch are found in its encouragement of proper relations among students of pharmacy, medicine, and dentistry, encouragement of sound pharmaceutical education and training, and improvement of the practice of pharmacy and the status of the pharmacist.

Graduate College

Graduate work at the Professional Colleges in Chicago has been in progress since 1924. Conduct of the work is under the direction of about 100 members of the faculty of the three colleges who have been approved also for graduate college appointments and the Committee on Graduate Work in Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy which determines policies particularly applicable to specialized work in the medical sciences. In 1949, the position of Assistant Dean was established because of the greatly increased registration and general conduct of graduate college matters is centralized in this office.

Graduate work on the Professional Colleges campus is primarily intended for students who have already completed their professional degrees in medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy. However, superior students currently registered in a Professional College curriculum or who have essentially completed premedical requirements and a Bachelor's degree are accepted on a highly selective basis if their interests indicate a desire for training at the graduate level in basic medical sciences.

Graduate training is not a matter of successfully completing a number of advanced courses but chiefly emphasizes original laboratory or clinical investigations. It is primarily a program of training for research and teaching in the medical sciences but incidental to such a program is the preparation of individuals for a keen and scientific approach to the conduct of their professional practice or speciality.

Illi-Sota

Illi-Sota, the official name of the Illinois Student Occupational Therapy Association, was organized in March, 1944, in Urbana as a campus activity; a section was organized on the campus of the Chicago Professional Colleges in September, 1945.

This organization was the out-growth of the establishment of a Curriculum in Occupational Therapy in 1943, the registrants in which register in the College of Liberal Arts for six semesters, and transferring to the Chicago campus, register in the College of Medicine for five quarters. The purposes of the organization are to familiarize members with the function of the occupational therapist as a member of the health team, to further acquaintanceship among the registrants, and to identify themselves as a professional group.

The Illio of 1950

Each year the presidents of the senior classes in dentistry, medicine and pharmacy appoint two committees from their respective colleges. The committees — this year headed by Joseph Brettner, a senior in medicine — are responsible for the compilation of the Chicago Professional College's section of the Illio.
Chicago Illini Union

The Chicago Illini Union has become the coordination center for student, faculty and staff activities on the campus of the Chicago Professional Colleges. The Committee on Student Affairs and the Chicago Illini Union is in charge of formulating policies.

The Display, Music and Social Committees are responsible for all student activities in the Union. Both social and scientific groups schedule their dinners, teas, dances, luncheons and smokers in the dining rooms and lounges. The soda fountain is a popular place for both student and staff informal gatherings. The new television set will continue to increase the popularity of the Union.

The highlight of the social activities is the Annual Campus Carnival which is held during the winter quarter. Because of the Carnival's popularity last year, it was necessary to limit the sale of tickets. The weekly Coffee Hours continue to attract students, faculty, and staff from the Professional Campus. Besides the Carnival and Coffee Hours, the Student Social Committee sponsors a Fall and Spring Formal, a Registration Dance each quarter and Coke Dances throughout the year.

Because of the increased interests in the displays and exhibits, the Student Display Committee had weekly instead of bi-monthly displays this year. The committee was fortunate in securing a variety of interesting displays.

The Student Music Committee plans bi-weekly record programs in addition to sponsoring Noon Musicales and a Music Master's Quiz.

During the noon hour, the meeting rooms, lounges, dining rooms and game room are always filled to capacity. Often the Chicago Illini Union has been called the “living room” of the Professional Campus.

The Dental R.O.T.C. Unit was organized in September, 1948, and at present has an enrollment of 50 students. The Corps is open to all first-year male students under 29 years of age, if they are physically qualified, and to upper-classmen who are under 31 years of age and are veterans. Upon completion of the 4 year course, which includes 6 weeks of Summer Camp, the students are eligible for a commission as 1st Lt. Dental Corps Reserve of the U.S. Army.

Lt. Col. G. G. Garrison is a graduate of the University of Iowa and served as Dental Surgeon for the 9th U.S. Air Force in the Middle East and Europe.
Medical ROTC

The Medical ROTC functions primarily in preparing medical students to be Medical Corps Reserve Officers. Most of the students remain in the reserve, a few enter the Regular Corps. Graduates of the ROTC have priority in being considered for Armed Services internships and residencies.

Intramurals

The Chicago Professional Schools Intramural Program is ably handled by John W. Brown, Instructor in Physical Education. In the 1948-1949 season, nine sports activities were available with over 40% of the total student enrollment participating.

Football is the first sport. The six man teams represent classes and student organizations from the three schools on this campus. The I.M.P.O. team emerged as champions with Phi Rho Sigma placing second.

Basketball starts in December with usually twenty or more teams entered. Delta Sigma Delta won the championship with Kappa Psi placing second. Kappa Psi represented the Professional Schools in the annual MING festival, placing second among the teams entered.

The annual Volleyball Championship was won by Kappa Psi. Golf being the next activity, Delta Sigma Delta won both the Spring and Fall tournaments. Phi Delta Epsilon won the Softball Championship and placed third in the annual MING festival.

Phi Mu Phi

Phi Mu Phi, an honorary musical fraternity, was founded by Dr. William H. Welker in 1936. Composed of students in the Professional Schools of the University of Illinois, candidates are elected to membership after participating in the parent musical organizations for two years. These organizations consist of a symphony orchestra, glee club, and dance band. Its regular musical concerts are highlights in the cultural life of the Medical Center of Chicago.

Navy Pier Campus
Chicago Undergraduate Division

The Chicago Undergraduate Division of the University of Illinois has developed a sound educational program since the school's establishment at Navy Pier in 1946. Four thousand students—a capacity enrollment—are attending classes at Navy Pier during its fourth school year.

The courses are patterned after the curricula on the Urbana campus with freshman and sophomore work in liberal arts, commerce, engineering, and architecture. In addition, complete pre-professional courses are offered in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, journalism, and teacher-training. The current school year saw the establishment of a degree program in nursing in cooperation with four Chicago schools of nursing.

The 68 classrooms—so similar to classrooms on other college campuses that it is difficult to remember that these are built over Lake Michigan—and 33 modern, fully-equipped laboratories are provided at Navy Pier. The classrooms and laboratories are supplemented by a 30,000 volume library, lounges, cafeterias, and extensive recreational facilities.

Honoraries and Professionals
University Honors are awarded to those seniors who maintain excellence in scholarship. The names of seniors receiving University Honors are inscribed on the Bronze Tablet in recognition of their sustained high scholarship. In order to qualify for this honor, a student must have been in the upper three percent of his class in his school or college in the four semesters in which he was considered for Junior and Senior Honors; therefore he must have been awarded College Honors in both his junior and senior years. University Honors are also awarded to graduating seniors who have earned College Honors twice and whose scholastic averages for all semesters previous to the one in which they graduate are at least equal to that of the four-semester average of the lowest student currently chosen for University Honors. The privilege of receiving a special University of Illinois Scholarship Key is extended to recipients of University Honors.

Beta Gamma Sigma

Beta Gamma Sigma, which is the national honor society designed exclusively for outstanding students in the school of commerce, was organized on this campus on February 26, 1913. The purpose of the organization is to honor outstanding scholastic accomplishments in the field of commerce and also in the field of business administration. The membership of the society is limited solely to those men and women who have shown their ability and who rank in the upper two percent of the junior class and in the upper ten per cent of the senior class; they are those students who show promise of marked success in their chosen field.

Since its very beginning, Beta Gamma Sigma has expanded considerably. Today, it has chapters at over fifty of the leading schools and colleges of commerce throughout the United States; it has a very large alumni group numbering more than fifteen thousand students and including many of the leading businessmen and industrialists of the country today.

Phi Eta Sigma is a scholastic honorary fraternity for freshman men. It was founded in 1923 at the University of Illinois. Dean Thomas Arkle Clark, its founding father, intended that it should promote and honor high scholarship among freshman men. At the present time, sixty chapters hold charters on university and college campuses in the United States. Evidence of a fast-growing organization has been shown by the installation of several new chapters each year.

To be eligible, freshman men must have achieved a 4.5 average or better during their first semester at school or by the end of their first year. In the fall of each school year, Phi Eta Sigma gives a smoker for those freshman men who have shown promise of attaining the required grade average or higher.

An installation ceremony is held during the latter part of the winter. Following the installation ceremony, a banquet is given in honor of the new initiates. Included in the program of the banquet is a speaker who is a well-known personality on the campus. The men elected to membership have the honor and privilege of wearing the Phi Eta Sigma key.

Student Administration
The Student Senate is the official voice of the students. Its purpose is to promote the general welfare of the student body and to exercise general policy-making authority over student affairs and activities in conjunction with the Committee on Student Affairs.

The Student Senate is composed of 34 members. Eighteen are elected by the student body in general elections each spring. The remaining sixteen are ex-officio members who represent the major campus activities and housing groups.

All students are welcome to attend Senate meetings and are free to speak before the group. Any student may sponsor legislation by presenting it in appropriate written form.

Permanent committees of the Senate include By-Laws, Finance, Public Relations, International Activities, Student Life, and Coordination. The Student Life committee functions primarily in the field of general campus welfare. The Coordination committee is charged with the responsibility of minimizing conflicts and undue competition in the presentation of public entertainment events by various student groups. Nearly all Senate committees are open to students who are not senators.
The Coordination Committee was established in 1948 by the Committee on Student Affairs and the Student Senate. It carries on the functions of the former Audit and Supervision Committee in connection with budgets for general University functions, including supervision of the function, printing, issuing and auditing tickets, and distributing complimentary tickets. The group also recommends approval or denial of petitions for events or activities of organizations, and sets the time, place, and date, all subject to the final jurisdiction of the Committee on Student Affairs. Organizations affected by the Coordination Committee are the Illini Board of Control, Illini Theatre Guild, men's athletics, women's athletics, Illini Union, Concert and Entertainment Board, Campus Chest, Freshman Council, and the housing groups. Membership includes eight senators, one representative from each of the housing groups, the Illini Union, Theatre Guild, and the Concert and Entertainment Board, and one elected senator who serves as chairman. Other members are two faculty representatives from the Committee on Student Affairs, and an assistant from the Dean of Men's office.
The Spring of 1949 brought to the Illinois campus a new and unique form of organization, the class association. Its benefits are more social functions, more control over those functions, and a cost reduction to the student. Because of the results of this plan, the Class of 1950 decided to continue and to improve it.

An exchange of ideas at the Second Annual Big Ten Senior Class conference gave the class many helpful points. Efforts were made by the Senior Class, through their representatives in the Student Senate, to increase social and cultural benefits of collegiate life. Constructive and progressive legislation was proposed and passed.

The beginning of the return to pre-war college life was noted along with an increasing number of younger students. The Class of 1950 graduates with the hope that improvements will be continued, and that its contributions will serve as a foundation on which to build a better "life at Illinois."
With all class officers serving on the Student Senate this year, the junior officers devoted most of their time to work on that body. They served on the different committees of the Senate and gave their wholehearted support toward providing more and better student government.

For the first time in many years, the junior class found it impossible to hold the annual junior prom. Early in the year the officers set up an organization entitled the Junior Association in an effort to raise the funds necessary for the prom. The University this year discontinued the practice of underwriting class dances since they had proved financial losses in the past. Therefore, it was necessary for the class officers to raise the funds before they could contract the band or make any other plans. Repeated publicity drives were staged, but the class members failed to respond to the idea.
The year 1949-1950 brought many changes in the responsibilities and duties of the Sophomore officers and the events held by the Sophomore Class. This year was the first time that class officers were elected for the entire year instead of for only one semester. In addition to the two student senators from the Sophomore class, all three class officers were now to hold seats in the student senate. The decision was also made that the Sophomore Cotillion would not be held.

With six representatives serving on the Senate and various Senate committees, the sophomores were certain of fair and equal representation. The absence of the annual Sophomore Cotillion, which was canceled by a vote of the Committee on Student Affairs, left the way clear for the undertaking of several other class projects which were carried through with success.

All in all, this has proved to be a very successful year for the Sophomore Class.
Acting in the power of the executive body of the freshman class, the Freshman Council of 1952 concerned itself this year with the numerous problems and difficulties met by freshmen upon entering the University. A large portion of the Council's work was centered upon the publication of a booklet entitled Facts For Freshmen. This booklet provided a complete summary of valuable information for freshmen and was distributed through advisors during the week of orientation.

In the spring semester, the Council sponsored a class dance, the "'52 Pickup," held in the Illini Union Ballroom. The music was furnished by Ben Bradley's orchestra, and members of the freshman class provided entertainment during intermission. The highlight of the dance was the selection of a king and queen from the students attending.

During the general campus election of all class officers, freshman class officers were elected. The Freshman Council, however, continued to be a functioning body.
The Interfraternity Council of the University of Illinois is the supervisory and governing body of all the social fraternities on campus. It formulates and administers interfraternity policies and assists in carrying out University policy pertinent to fraternities. I.F. is composed of chapter representatives of the fifty-six fraternities at the University. Weekly meetings are held to provide the setting for getting acquainted and for the birth and dissemination of constructive ideas for fraternity operation. The University of Illinois was the scene of the first Interfraternity Council and has held an important position as a leader in fraternity self-government.

The University of Illinois was the first university to establish the post of Assistant Dean of Men for Fraternities. Dean Carl M. Grip has held that position since its inception. University control, when necessary, is exercised through the Board of Fraternity Affairs, which is composed of three staff fraternity men, three local fraternity alumni, and the five undergraduate officers of the Interfraternity Council.

Seated: William Stillman, Lambda Chi Alpha, sergeant-at-arms; Ronald Womack, Pi Kappa Phi, secretary; Scott Shelton, Chi Psi, president; James Savage, Delta Kappa Epsilon, vice president; William Martin, Pi Kappa Alpha, treasurer
The Men's Independent Association is a student-established and student-administered organization of the independent men on the campus of the University of Illinois. Through the unified effort made possible by this organization, these students exert influence in the formulation of general policies concerning student welfare. M.I.A. has been organized so that it may encompass and represent independent men. This has been accomplished through the organization of houses with four or more residents, each of which elects a representative to the M.I.A. council. The council is the policy-making body for the organization and decides all matters of major importance. The executive body is the Directorate made up of the officers and committee chairmen of M.I.A. The problems facing M.I.A. provide opportunity and incentive for independents in all areas of student activity, including scholastic, athletic, social, and recreational fields. M.I.A. aids in student participation in sports. In the academic field, trophies are awarded for high scholarship.

Panhellocnic is the law making body for all sororities at the University of Illinois. Its policy is to create a high plane of fraternity life and interfraternity relations within the University, to further fine intellectual accomplishment and sound scholarship, and to cooperate with the college administration in the maintenance of high school standards. Panhellenic is composed of two governing bodies, the Presidents' council, composed of chapter presidents; and the Executive committee, composed of Panhellenic officers, the faculty advisor, departmental chairmen, and junior departmental chairmen. The departments covered by Panhellenic are social, scholarship, activity, rushing, pledge, and Shi-Ai. The junior departmental chairmen work with Junior Panhellenic which consists of all sorority freshmen. Included in its activities are the Fall Scholarship dessert and the Spring banquet, when individual and house scholarship is honored; the Pledge banquet; and the annual Panhellenic ball.

Women's Group System, the first group of its kind on any college campus, is the organization of all independent women. Included in the system are organized women's houses, women's residence halls, and scattered groups. The presidents of these groups participate in a weekly council meeting.

The governing body of W.G.S. is the Executive Council, composed of the officers, major chairmen, sub-district chairmen, and faculty advisors.

W.G.S. devotes its time to the encouragement of scholarship, activities and social life among its members. Among its varied activities are the district and scholarship teas, the Christmas Musicale, the Watcheka Sing, and the House Presidents' Banquet. W.G.S. cooperates with M.I.A. to present events such as the Independent Stunt Show, free mixers, and the publication of a newspaper, the Independent. Climaxing the year's activities is the W.G.S. Awards Tea when newly-elected officers are inaugurated and recognition is given for outstanding scholarship and activity participation.

The Illini Union

The Illini Union is the community center for the University of Illinois. It is intended to be self-supporting with the main source of income received from the fee of $5.00 per semester paid by every student. This fee is used to amortize the bonded indebtedness and to pay for the operation of those areas of the building that do not produce any revenue. Thus, by payment of the fee at registration, all students automatically become members of the Union and are entitled to use all of its facilities and services and to participate in its activities.

The Union is a busy place, and as such concerns itself with the whole area of student life and interests outside of the classroom. It provides lounges, food services, meeting rooms, game rooms, bowling alleys, a browsing library, ticket sales windows, an information window, and other services and opportunities for the students to work and play together and make profitable use of their leisure time. Over 15,000 individuals enter the building daily; approximately 8,500 meals are served; and over 1,750 visit the Main Desk for newspapers, cigarettes, candy, and cigars. The Illini Union Bookstore is a beneficial project which pays dividends to the students patronizing the store.

The Illini Union Board, which is composed of both students and faculty, is responsible for carrying on a broad program of student activities of an all-University nature. These programs are planned and executed by a wide variety of student committees which are organized under six departments. Included among these functions are the daily record programs in the music lounge, the weekly Coffee Hours, the weekly informal dance at Club Commons, and the Town Meeting programs twice a month. There are also tournaments in bowling, billiards, checkers, and chess, and classes for social and square dancing. Student committees arrange the weekly movie at the Auditorium, the Saturday night and other special University dances, the University Sings, Spring Carnival, Homecoming, Dads Day, and Mothers Day.

Campus Chest

Campus Chest, an organization founded at the University of Illinois, has this year reached full status as a recognized major independent activity. Because of the interests and efforts of those who have contributed time and money to our University charity organization, Campus Chest has proved itself one of the most outstanding student charity organizations in the country. Last year over $20,000 was collected and allocated to local, national, and international charities and relief groups. This year money will again be allocated to the World Student Service Fund, CARE, Lisle Fellowship, University of Illinois Scholarship Fund, Negro College Student Fund, Community Chest, American Field Service, and other worthy charitable organizations.

To relieve the faculty and student body from constant solicitation, a one-day Campus Chest drive is held each fall. Over $6,000 was collected during this year's drive held on November 9. Proceeds from the Spring Carnival, which is an Illini Union sponsored activity, and special events, organized throughout the year by Campus Chest, do much to augment the Campus Chest funds. Many other student activity organizations also contribute wholeheartedly.

Funds are distributed by an Allocations and Advisory Board composed of representatives from major groups on campus. The Allocations board determines which relief organizations are to receive aid and designates the size of donations received by these sponsoring charity and relief groups.
The All University Forum consists of a series of addresses throughout the school year which are given by well known speakers who bring to the campus their points of view on subjects of general interest.

Originating in 1944, the committee of the All University Forum, which is composed of six faculty members and six students, has presented this series of lectures by people who are leaders in their particular fields and prominent in public life. Officiating as chairman is Professor Edward Cleary.

An interesting presentation this year was a panel discussion on "What's Wrong with Education." Participating in this forum were President George Stoddard, Provost Coleman Griffith, Dean Henning Larsen, and Dean Willard Spalding.

Although the primary appeal of the All University Forum is to the students, the lectures are open to the public as well as students without charge.
Ralph Bunche, distinguished mediator for the United Nations and the Palestine disputes between the Israelis and the Arabs, spoke on "The Road to Peace: The United Nations Way." A graduate of Harvard, Mr. Bunche is a member of the American Political Science Association, has been a teacher, and has held several U.S. state department jobs.

Holding Carter, the liberal "fighting editor," and publisher of the Delta Democrat-Times, expressed his personal opinion in answer to the question, "Is the South That Bad?" Winner of the 1945 Pulitzer prize for distinguished editorial writing, Mr. Carter is the author of the novels "The Wings of Fear" and "Flood Crest.

Paul Douglas, author of numerous books on economic subjects, including "The Theory of Wages" and "Real Wages in the U.S." spoke on "Legislative Problems of the 81st Congress." President of the American Economic Association, Mr. Douglas was a member of the Consumers' Advisory board, and was active in drafting the original Social Security Act.

Meie Miller, one of the most outstanding young writers and critics of today, discussed "What's Wrong with American Magazines?" Mr. Miller, the associate editor of Harper's Magazine, has worked on the staffs of Time magazine and as book editor of the Saturday Review of Literature. He is the author of "We Dropped the A-Bomb" and "That Winter.

William Laurence, the only civilian to witness four of the five atomic explosions, discussed in his address, "Human Benefits of the Atomic Energy," the peace time uses of atomic energy in industry and medicine. Author of "Dawn Over Zero," Mr. Laurence was the only man selected by the War department to write about the Nagasaki explosion.

Clifton Utley, famed radio commentator and foreign analyst, gave his personal "Report on Europe." Mr. Utley has studied international relations and political science abroad and has extensively toured almost all the European countries. His great new career began in 1926, and, since 1935, he has had weekly broadcasts on foreign affairs.

Countess Tolstoy, authoress of "The Tragedy of Tolstoy" and "I Worked for the Soviets," discussed "The Dangers of Communism," basing her lecture on personal contact with Communists here and abroad. She has established the Tolstoy foundation in New York which is dedicated to protecting the rights of Men, Women and Children in the United States.
Religious Activities
Y. M. C. A.

The Y.M.C.A., whose purpose is to foster Christian ideas in everyday student life and to provide opportunities for training in Christian leadership, is now in its seventy-seventh year of service to the campus community.

Among the vital services sponsored by this organization are the International Friendship supper clubs for foreign students, lectures on family living by noted speakers, a camp held in the fall to ease adjustment of freshmen to college life, the promotion of boys clubs in the twin cities, and week-end dances and parties in cooperation with the Y.W.C.A. Other campus functions and services are the Chanticleer, student pamphlet issued every two weeks; the "I" book; bi-weekly faculty and graduate forums; freshman discussion groups led by upperclassmen; and participation in the Sweet Sixteen Circus. There are 400 students taking part on the various committees of the "Y" program.

The "Y" building, which has been a hub of campus activity since its erection in 1938, offers to the students quiet study rooms, recreational facilities, a lunch room, and a widely-read file of hometown newspapers.

The University Young Women’s Christian association has grown into one of the largest organizations for campus and community women. Each member receives the maximum opportunities for living a broader and more creative life through service and a growing knowledge of God.

The program of the Y.W.C.A. offers activities corresponding with every individual’s interests. The fundamental concepts of Christian living are incorporated into the community and campus service projects, which range from working with children’s recreational centers to welcoming foreign students. The social events aid in broadening friendships and contacts.

Members benefit from the group cooperation and leadership training. Emphasis is placed upon personal growth to help insure social consciousness in the housewives and career women of future years.

Special annual events highlight the year’s activities. At Homecoming mums are sold. Every Christmas a doll show built around a general theme is presented with organized women’s houses participating. The dolls are distributed to children throughout the state.

The Y.W.C.A. offers a fine opportunity for a university or community woman to aid others while developing her own character potentialities.

The Student Religious Council is a body of students representing all the religious foundations on campus. It offers an excellent opportunity for students of all faiths to voice their opinions and to achieve united action to further the cause of religion.

Since the council is not only inter-foundation, but also inter-denominational, it helps to cement good relations among the different faiths. The Easter-Passover festival is an example of good inter-faith work. The S.R.C. also sponsors inter-foundation socials and discussion groups.

The main purpose of the council is to forward the cause of religion and to develop religious leaders on the campus. Each foundation is encouraged to present its problems and solutions to the council. In this way the council serves as a clearing house for ideas. The council sponsors Campus Matins as morning worship services once a month. It encourages students to take part in foundation activities and thus secure the spiritual and social advantages offered. It lends its full support to those activities and movements which incorporate in their structures sound moral and religious concepts consistent with our country’s democratic ideals.
Illini Christian Fellowship, a chapter of Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship, is an inter-denominational Christian organization which strives to consider the spiritual and moral problems of the day through study of the Bible, through prayer, and through group discussion. Believing that the solution to all problems is to be found only in Christ, each member seeks to know Christ and to spread His word. A full and varied program includes challenging lectures by eminent Christian leaders, weekly Bible study, and daily meditation and prayer. Understanding is further fostered through the sharing of ideas at regional, national, and international conferences held periodically on university campuses throughout the world.

Although it emphasizes the spiritual and intellectual, Intervarsity does not neglect the social needs of its members. Thus Illini Christian Fellowship is prepared to make a contribution to not just one, but to many phases of campus life, challenging students to give greater service to a world in need.

Officers of the organization are Paul Hanselman, president; John Danielson, vice president; Mary Lou Nicholls, secretary; and Frank Luzzi, treasurer.
Baptist Student Fellowship keeps the University student in contact with local, national and world-wide Christian student activities. On this campus the student needs for spiritual emphasis are fulfilled by Sunday worship, church school, Coffee Club, vesper services, and Supper Club.

Lutheran Student Center Missouri Synod, serves students of the Lutheran Synodical Conference. The program revolves about the Sunday chapel services, conducted by Reverend E. H. Heintzen. Other activities are sponsored by Gamma Delta, Association of Lutheran students, and by the Married Students and Staff Club. The total program is coordinated and supervised by the Student Executive Council.

McKinley Foundation provides church and student center for the spiritual enrichment and development of the lives of Presbyterian students on the campus.

The purpose of Newman Foundation, the Catholic student center at the University of Illinois, is to deepen the spiritual feeling and to enrich the temporal life of its members. Under the direction of the Reverend Edward Duncan and his assistants, the Reverend Edward O'Rourke and the Reverend Edgar Taylor, this group unites Catholic students on campus. Most important of the activities of Newman Foundation is St. John's Catholic Chapel, in which students are offered several masses daily as well as on Sunday.

Other Newman activities include discussion groups, lectures, corporate communions, dramatics, intramural sports, parties, and social programs. Traditional events, including a spring formal, a dramatic production, and a picnic at Turkey Run State park in Indiana, are eagerly anticipated. Notable additions to the Newman program are credit courses in religion, the choir, the Graduate Students' League, the Married Couples' group, the Sanctuary Society, and the Altar Society. The foundation is affiliated with National Federation of Newman Clubs, which is composed of similar groups at universities throughout the country.

Illio Editorial Staff

Led by editor Irene Ther and her associates, Ginevera Little, Betty Lou Bailey, and Bill Muster, the Illio editorial staff has done much to further its goal of producing a better organized, more interesting annual each year. This year, by revamping its plan of work distribution, the staff has functioned more efficiently than ever before.

Bill Muster was first to fill the newly established position of associate editor in charge of photography. Under the four editors are ten assistant editors, each of whom is responsible for designing and assembling several sections of the book.

The assistant editors have charge of the sophomore copy editors whose duties are gathering information and writing copy. The same type of work plus typing and filing are done by the freshmen.
Illio Business Staff
The Illio Business staff has the all-important job of managing the Illio's finances. This year it was headed in this task by business manager Gene Dale and associate managers Mary Catherine Carlson and Mahlon Neal. This year, emphasis was placed on sales and more and better advertising. Special stress on freshman classes assured next year's staff of a well-trained group of sophomores.

The organization of the Business staff is divided into four groups: finance, sales, personnel and advertising, each of which is managed by two or three assistant managers. Under the assistants are the freshmen and sophomores, who are responsible for general office work and selling Illio subscriptions to the students.

The Daily Illini, now in its seventy-ninth year, is published by students—for students.

As a major means of expression for student and faculty opinion, the newspaper reports campus news and important local, national, and world affairs.

Directed by Bob Fitzgibbon, editor, and Hollen Hyndman, associate editor, the newspaper is divided into five staffs. The staffs and their editors are: Administration, Mike Connelly; City, Mae Eanes; North Campus, Jvanne Henry; Rewrite, Bill Yates; and South Campus, Marie Reno.

Providing practical experience in all phases of editorial work on a newspaper, The Daily Illini conducts an extensive training program under the supervision of Acting Publisher O. C. Leiter, professor emeritus of journalism.
Daily Illini Business Staff
Under the direction of two business managers for the first time in years, the 1950 business staff of The Daily Illini was headed by Bob Poisall and Joan Hasty, co-business managers. Its functions included display, classified and national advertising, circulation, promotion, copy, statistics, and office departments.

Serving as assistant business managers were Carol Fries, Barbara Christiansen, Bob McBride, Marian Margolin, and Al Gould.

Operating in direct advertising and news competition with the two town dailies, The Daily Illini is rated among the top three of American college dailies. Following graduation, business staff members have no trouble obtaining profitable positions on newspapers throughout the country.
Actual newspaper experience is gained by those students working on the sports staff of The Daily Illini. For your reading pleasure, The Daily Illini sports staff covers all University sports ably and accurately. Increased coverage has been given both varsity and intramural events because of the increased interest in all sports. Besides these, The Daily Illini sports pages include accounts of all local high school games plus Associated Press reports of the national sports scene.

Not only is a Daily Illini reporter present at all of the University of Illinois' home sports events, but he is also on the job when the major varsity squads travel out of town.

Heading the 1949-50 sports staff was Dick Kranz, who also conducted the column "Kranzberries." He was aided by Hank Ponleithner, assistant sports editor. Serving under these two as copy editors were John Marcus, Joe Mooshil, Jerry Wynn, Leo Gutmann, and Bud Karmin.

The money rolls in
The Illini Publishing Company is a non-commercial corporation chartered under the laws of the State of Illinois for the purpose of printing, publishing, and distributing all official student publications. Under the direction of Professor Cecil Moyer, chairman of the Board of Control, and Paul McMichael, company business manager and student advisor, the company provides the best printing service available at the minimum cost.

Management of the corporation is vested in a board of directors whose membership consists of four faculty members and four students, all of whom must serve without compensation. The students are elected by the board from a group of nominees submitted by the Student Senate. These members serve for two-year terms. Faculty members are appointed by the President of the University of Illinois upon recommendation by the Dean of Students. These members serve four-year terms, none of which run concurrently.

The Board, besides acting as a financial control group, has the job of appointing the senior editors and senior managers of all the student publications.

Publications published by the company at the present time are: The Daily Illini, newspaper; the Illinois Agriculturist, magazine published for the students in the College of Agriculture; the Illio, yearbook; and the Illinois Technograph, magazine published for the students in the College of Engineering.
The photographic staff of the Illini Publishing Company has the job of taking pictures for all the University publications, including the Illio, The Daily Illini, the Technograph, the Agriculturist, and the Trader, new commerce publication. Under the direction of Bill Muster, first semester photo chief; Al Augustyn, second semester photo chief, and their assistant photo chief Howard Wedelstaedt, the 1950 staff had its offices and its new darkroom in the basement of Illini Hall.

Most of the photographers provide their own cameras, receiving from the Illini Publishing Company such supplies as films, bulbs, and paper. The members of the photographic staff work in co-operation with the editorial staffs to produce publications made more interesting by good pictures. The 1950 staff has endeavored to improve its efficiency by introducing a training program for freshmen and sophomores during the spring semester. The photographic staff of next fall will be selected from those who have successfully completed this course, assuring the publications of well-trained photographers.
Technograph

This year marked the 65th year of publication of The Illinois Technograph, the student publication of the College of Engineering. The Technograph is published each month of the school year; it presents feature articles of technical and semi-technical nature, the latest industrial developments, personalities of professors and students, and other items of interest to local student engineers.

Members of the Technograph staff have been quite active in affairs on engineering campus. They "engineered" the Dads' Day tours, and cooperated fully with the activities of the Engineering Council.

The three faculty advisors, Professors John A. Henry, Lorena A. Rose, and Walter E. Hanson, have provided encouraging assistance and support to The Illinois Technograph.

Agriculturist

The Illinois Agriculturist is the student publication of the College of Agriculture. Established in 1869, the publication provides news coverage of many of the scientific developments and general interest events in agriculture and home economics here at the College of Agriculture.

The Agriculturist through its six issues provides also an excellent means for students to gain valuable training and experience in agricultural journalism and business administration.

The publication is directed this year by Russell Lewey, editor; Glyndon Stuff, assistant editor; Gilda Gleim, woman’s editor; Koreen Krapf, assistant woman’s editor; Paul Vogen, business manager; Jack Bingham, assistant business manager; and Alvin Elliot, circulation manager.

Theatre Guild

The Illini Theatre Guild presented the most extensive Guild program witnessed in recent years. Theatre Guild is an organization of three undergraduate societies: Mask and Bauble, all-university dramatic honorary; Pierrots, men's dramatic honorary; and Arepo, operatic honorary. The executive authority of the Illini Theatre Guild is vested in a board of directors whose members during this past season were Robert Mallary, Professor Abner Knight, Donald Hewson, Doctor Cameron Gullette, Elmer Scholer, Barbara Seymour, Marjory Halvorsen, Patricia Baker, Professor Karl Wallace, and Frederick Voelpel.
The Illini Theatre Guild offers experience in a variety of campus theatrical events. Participation in dance, drama, playwriting, and student directed plays are a few of the many opportunities offered by the Guild Workshops. The Playwrights Workshop is directed by Herbert Kubly, and William Adams directs the Actors Workshop and the Showcase Workshop. Professor Wesley Swanson is continuing as supervising director of Dramatic Productions, and Professor Charles Shattuck is associate director. Musical Productions are under the direction of Professor Ludwig Zirner. Technical director of scenery, properties, and lighting is Professor Joseph Scott, and Miss Genevieve Richardson is technical director of costumes.

Star Course

Star Course presents outstanding entertainment by leading concert musicians. It is sponsored and controlled by the University Concert and Entertainment board which makes the final decisions concerning the selection of artists and supervises the appointment of staff members. In 1891, when Star Course originated, it was called the Star Lecture Course. It remained under the auspices of the literary societies until, in 1931, the University Concert and Entertainment board was organized. Lee Cadwell and Steve French, co-managers of Star Course, work closely with the board, manage finances and direct the office staff.
The junior managers are chosen by the University Concert and Entertainment Board on the basis of their scholarship and their work as members of the sophomore staff. Under the supervision of the senior managers, these juniors handle all of the Star Course activities. Among their duties are arrangements for publicity, supervision of ticket sales, maintenance of routine correspondence, entertainment for the artists, and supervision of ushers for all Star Course performances. Sophomore managers are chosen by the board and by the senior managers on the basis of their freshman activities and their scholarship. They do office work in addition to selling concert tickets and ushering for performances.

The University A Cappella Choir extended both its program and its membership considerably this year. In its second year under the direction of Professor Robert Commanday, the choir has doubled in size. This season the present group is composed of sixty-two members. The choir's first appearance this year was at the University Christmas Sing. A January concert and radio broadcast preceded the Choir's performance of modern choral works during the Festival of Contemporary Arts in March. A spring concert, radio broadcasts, and off-campus appearances were other highlights of the year. The varied repertoire of the choir features masterworks of choral literature and includes motets by Bach and Brahms. The choir draws its membership from students in all departments of the University and supports an active social program. Members are selected on the basis of competitive tryouts held at the beginning of each semester.

University Chorus

The University chorus, directed by Professor Paul Young, is one of the oldest musical organizations on the campus. For more than a quarter of a century it has presented concerts and taken part in many musical programs. Outstanding among its activities have been the many presentations of Handel's "Messiah," which was sung on December 18 with the University Symphony orchestra. In its spring concerts, the chorus has presented oratorios and cantatas of Bach, Franck, Mendelssohn, Saint-Saëns, Liszt and other masters. Plans for the 1949-1950 season included a group of modern works to be sung during the Contemporary Arts festival and a performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in the late spring.
One of the most prominent musical groups on the University of Illinois campus is the Men's Glee Club. Although the members and the director were in the process of getting acquainted, the Men's Glee Club was not prevented from appearing early in the fall. The first performance of the year was at the Freshmen Welcome. Professor Young's ability as a choral director and the members' love for singing combined to give the Men's Glee Club another very successful season. Highlighting the year's activities were WGN broadcasts in honor of Bob Zuppke, the tour of the state between semesters, and the annual Spring Concert. Home appearances of the club were made on Dads Day and Founders Day. The club also appeared at the State Bankers Association, the Champaign District association for the Blind Benefit, and the University Christmas Sing. Novelty numbers and many new arrangements formed a superb combination that well deserved the praise forthcoming at the end of a successful concert year.

In its fifty-fifth year, the Women's Glee Club membership grew steadily throughout the year. The Glee Club, directed by Joseph Albertson, joined with other campus choral groups to provide a variety of Christmas sings about the campus. For the Contemporary Arts Festival in March, the Glee Club sang selections from their modern choral repertoire. Plans for the year also included a full concert given late in the Spring. In all the concerts, the women presented a wide variety of music with selections from the church music of the 16th century, choral compositions by Bach, Mozart, and Brahms, and works by contemporary composers. Special features of the repertoire were folk songs of many lands arranged by outstanding musicians. The activities of the Women's Glee Club were under the guidance of Carol Reynard, president; Barbara Lowry, vice president; Betty Abraham, secretary; Doris Sandlund, librarian. Grace Balazs was the accompanist.
The Sinfonietta, a thirty-five piece orchestra, is composed of musicians selected from the University Orchestra. John M. Kuypers, director of the University Orchestra, also conducts the Sinfonietta. Only the most competent musicians are invited to take part in this musical organization, for the Sinfonietta represents the finest instrumental talent on the campus. The organization is composed of both students and faculty. The Sinfonietta makes frequent campus appearances and, like the University Orchestra, is called upon to play with visiting soloists and conductors. One of its outstanding features last year was an all-Stravinsky program in the 1949 Festival of Contemporary Arts. For this event the noted composer himself conducted the Sinfonietta. The Sinfonietta makes a number of tours under the auspices of the music extension program of the University. On these tours, members of the orchestra frequently conduct clinic sessions for high school musicians as well as perform concerts.

Sinfonietta

Repertory Orchestra

The University of Illinois Repertory orchestra, conducted by George Hunter, is made up largely of freshmen from the School of Music. Other members are students who are not enrolled in music school, faculty from other departments of the University, and local citizens who are not connected with the University but are interested in orchestra participation. It offers training and opportunity for those musicians who wish to play with an orchestral group although they do not yet qualify for the University Symphony orchestra. These musicians, however, may later qualify for the larger orchestra. The University Repertory orchestra is a fully-balanced orchestra. Its membership is limited only by the number of musicians wishing to participate. Like the Sinfonietta and the University Symphony, the Repertory orchestra presents regular concerts during the year. This group also accompanies graduating seniors in the spring when they present their senior recitals. The organization of such a group has helped greatly to develop undiscovered talents and increase the appreciation for the production of worthwhile music.
The University of Illinois Symphony Orchestra, composed of eighty-five members, is conducted by John M. Kuypers, director of the School of Music. This organization is full symphonic size, and its sections are complete and balanced musically. Although membership in the orchestra is open to all qualified musicians of the university and the community, most of its members are students or faculty of the School of Music at the University. The Walden String Quartet, artists-in-residence at the University of Illinois, and faculty members of the School of Music are regular members. In its repertoire, the University Orchestra includes both contemporary and classical symphonic works. Members of the orchestra have played with the University Chorus under the direction of the University choral director. During the year this orchestra presents several full concerts in the University Auditorium, and in addition, makes appearances on the programs of visiting artists, and appears on periodically scheduled radio programs.

University Orchestra

The Concert Band, as a result of the efforts of Director Emeritus A. A. Harding and his successor, Mark H. Hindsley, is recognized by many as the finest in the college field. This organization has long been a model by which other bands are judged. It is the top group in the University of Illinois Bands, which also include the First Regimental Band, the Second Regimental Band, and the Football Band. The department has one of the finest band libraries in the country, which includes the entire library of the late John Philip Sousa and the symphonic transcriptions of Dr. Harding. Yearly activities of the Concert Band include the Sousa Memorial program; the Annual Band Clinic, an educational endeavor for the benefit of college and high school band directors from all over the nation; the Anniversary Concert in March; the President’s concert; regular radio broadcasts; twilight concerts; and graduation exercises. The band takes several trips during the year, giving concerts for high schools and other institutions.
This versatile musical organization is conducted by Everett D. Kisinger, Assistant Director of Bands. The First Regimental Band serves as the nucleus of the University of Illinois Football Band. When the football season is over, it becomes an outstanding concert organization which presents a formal concert each year. The First Regimental Band participates in twilight concerts in the spring and broadcasts over radio station WILL. It also functions at important military ceremonies. At the Annual Band Clinic, the band becomes a laboratory for band directors from all over the nation. For this event music publishers submit unreleased, new scores which are read by the First Regimental Band for criticism. Members of the First Regimental Band receive advanced training under the supervision of specialists on the band staff and through special sectional rehearsals. As they develop top standards of playing ability, they have opportunities for promotion to the Concert Band as replacements for graduating members.

First Regimental Band

Second Regimental Band

The Second Regimental band, conducted by Lyman A. Starr, is an integral part of the University of Illinois bands. It is divided into two sections which serve as training units for the First Regimental and Concert bands. Selected members are appointed for participation in the Football band and perform with the Football band at the Homecoming and Dad's Day games. The band plays for military drills, parades, and ceremonies. Other activities of the Second Regimental band include the performance of a two-hour program during the annual band clinic, broadcasts over radio station WILL, and a twilight concert.
The University of Illinois Football Band is one of the finest and largest marching, playing, and singing organizations of its kind. For over a quarter of a century this group has been entertaining Illini football spectators with outstanding formations and harmonious arrangements of both concert and popular music. In 1949, under the direction of Everett D. Kisinger, the Marching Illini exhibited several new, distinctive formations. Among them were: a huge Fiddle formation to the accompaniment of Fiddle-Faddle, the proverbial Missouri mule while playing On the Trail from Ferdi Grofe’s Grand Canyon Suite, and the Zuppke and Red Grange formations. Other features were entrances from spread formation to the march from Tchaikowsky’s Sixth Symphony and Rimsky-Korsakov’s Procession of the Nobles. Members of the Concert, First Regimental, and Second Regimental bands make up the marching band. This musical team goes through a work week of over 1100 man hours in order to thrill Illini fans.

The aims of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers, better known as the A.I.E.E.—I.R.E., are the advancement of allied sciences and arts, a high professional standing among its members, and the advancement of the individual engineer. The student branch is patterned after the national organizations and operates in the same general manner. This familiarizes the student with the operation of the national organizations to which he will belong when he goes into the professional field.

The principal activity of the student branch is to function as an organization, under the auspices of the Institutes, for aiding in the development of the latent abilities of the students. Main functions of the A.I.E.E.—I.R.E. on campus are sponsoring field trips, backing student reforms, and encouraging presentation and discussion of papers, reports, and abstracts.

Student-faculty relations are developed by sponsoring such activities as the electrical engineering senior-faculty banquets, the student picnic, and the baseball tournament. The A.I.E.E.—I.R.E. also plays an important role in the St. Patrick’s Ball and the Engineering Show.

The Dolphin fraternity was organized in 1912 by E. J. Manley, present coach of the University of Illinois swimming team, with the express purpose of promoting aquatic activities. Its members are chosen from those men who display outstanding skill in all phases of water sports and who demonstrate devotion to the purpose of the fraternity. In the years after the first World War, the Dolphins became a national organization.

Since the year of the fraternity's founding, the Dolphin Watershow has been an annual event. With the proceeds of this annual aquacade the fraternity is able to promote interest in aquatic activities on the campus and throughout the state. A recent innovation of the watershow is the selection by the audience of a Dolphin Queen who is elected from a number of candidates.

This year the Dolphins sent nine members and four faculty members as representatives to the National Aquatic Forum at Fort Lauderdale, Florida. In addition to promoting such activities as water polo, the Dolphin members aid in the officiating at swimming events and meets on the campus.

The first university home economics club of its kind founded in this country was the Isabel Bevier Home Economics Club, originating at the University of Illinois. The principles upon which the organization was founded are primarily concerned with further developing interest in home economics at the University of Illinois, promoting social interest among members and faculty, stimulating a basic interest and an increased knowledge of the professional world of home economics, and developing an appreciation of the home. University students majoring in home economics and enrolled in the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, or Education are eligible for membership in the club. Among the activities with which the club concerns itself are the Freshman Tea, All-Ag Field Day, Christmas Party, Home Economics Spring Banquet, social hours with the Agricultural Club, and regular monthly meetings. The name of the freshman girl attaining the highest scholarship during the year is inscribed on a plaque which hangs in Bevier Hall. The advisors of the club are Miss Ritta Whitesel and Miss Dorothy Durrell.

The Hoof and Horn Club is an organization composed of agriculture students who are interested in animal science. As a subsidiary organization of the Agriculture Club, it provides a means for students interested in livestock production to become better acquainted with their fellow students and professors as well as a number of outstanding men who are associated with animal husbandry. As a result, the students obtain a much broader outlook of the animal science industry and acquire a greater working knowledge of what is happening in this field. The club has a membership approaching two hundred men, all of whom have united to promote their mutual interests. The experiences that they have encountered in this organization are valuable to them as a supplement to their classroom work. The club holds regular monthly meetings and two major events annually. The Little International, a quality horse show, is presented in the fall and serves as a means for raising funds which help finance the Livestock Judging contest, which takes place in the spring.

All students registered in the University who have received credit for two semesters of accountancy are eligible for membership in the Accountancy Club. The purposes of the organization are to inform members of professional and honorary achievements in the College of Commerce, to foster interests in the science of accounting, and to promote understanding and fellowship between faculty and students in the College of Commerce. Monthly meetings featuring talks by prominent accountants are designed to acquaint the members with current trends in accounting.

The executive committee of the Accountancy Club is composed of the Senior and Junior Councils. The Senior Council handles the publicity, the membership drives of the club, and the selection of speakers. Sophomore and Junior members are eligible to serve on the Junior Council. After serving on the Junior Council for two semesters, these members automatically become members of the Senior Council.

The Accountancy Club, in promoting understanding and fellowship among the members, sponsors numerous faculty and student athletic events during the year.
The Illini Insurance Society is a new organization for students interested in a career in insurance. The purpose of the society is to bridge the gap between the classroom and the field. It was organized on December 17, 1947, at an inaugural dinner held on campus. Attending the dinner were approximately forty-five prominent Illinois insurance men. The presence of many key men from the insurance business demonstrated the interest of insurance people in this new organization. The Society was launched with an address by its first honorary member, Kenny Williamson, who is now President of the University Board of Trustees. The Society includes 150 active student members and a like number of associate members who are active in insurance in Illinois. A program meeting is held once a month during the school year. Two of these meetings are banquet meetings; one is a Christmas banquet, and the other is a spring banquet. The programs are designed to bring current and practical insurance discussions to the members. Faculty members who serve as advisors are Robert Mehr, Robert Hedges, and Charles Carlyle.

"Orchesis" is a Greek word meaning "to dance." The purpose of the organization is to offer to men and women of the University the opportunity for creative dance study, composition, and performance; to stimulate interest in art dance; and to foster high standards of performance, appreciation, and understanding of the art in the community.

The yearly spring concert is the major activity and is given in conjunction with The Contemporary Arts Festival in March. Other activities include sponsoring concerts by famous dance artists, organizing play days in which neighboring colleges are invited to participate, and lecture demonstrations for the music and art departments, clubs on campus, and neighboring schools. Orchesis also participates in productions which combine the efforts of the music, drama, and dance departments.

Junior Orchesis is a branch of the organization in which non-members are given the opportunity to improve skills to meet regular membership requirements. The newly established associate membership gives interested individuals a chance to help stage the dance productions.

Shi-Ai

Shi-Ai, first established at Northwestern University in 1920, is the society which honors sophomore sorority women for outstanding work in all-university activities. Every fall the two most active sophomores from each of the Illinois sororities are chosen to become pledges of Shi-Ai. This honorary enables these sophomore women to promote and strengthen inter-sorority friendship by their exchange of ideas pertaining to matters of common interests.

As welfare projects, Shi-Ai gives Christmas gifts and writes letters to brighten the lives of war orphans over-seas. It also sponsors a party for the children at the Huling Orphan's Home in Rantoul, at Christmas-time or in the spring, and sometimes on both occasions. Shi-Ai also sponsors the annual Shi-Ai Sing which is held on the Friday night of the campus Mothers Day week-end, and in cooperation with the new sophomore independent women's honorary, Alpha-Chron, has helped plan and present a most enjoyable dance. This innovation has provided a friendly link between independent and sorority women.

Skull and Crescent is a national sophomore honorary fraternity composed of two members chosen from the twenty-five oldest fraternities on campus. Its primary objective is to create and promote interfraternity fellowship and to encourage freshmen to excel in both scholarship and campus activities.

One of the main activities of the fraternity is the annual Pledge Pajama Race held in the Armory. On December 7, thirty-six fraternities competed. Phi Delta Theta won the first place trophy and Delta Tau Delta won the second place cup.

Monthly dinner meetings are held at one of the member houses, where various subjects are discussed, designed to further good will among fraternities. The main social events consist of a formal dinner-dance at the Urbana-Lincoln Hotel, a pledge banquet, and an exchange party with the members of Shi-Ai. Each year the new initiates receive Skull and Crescent pins which are passed down from the alums to the new members.

The success of Skull and Crescent this year depended, as always, on the support and enthusiasm of its members, and it continues to maintain its traditions as it has for over thirty years.
Star and Scroll is a sophomore activity honorary society founded at the University of Illinois for the purpose of creating and promoting interfraternity fellowship, raising freshman scholarship standards, and perpetuating the traditions of the University.

Two men are chosen from each member fraternity on the basis of their freshman scholarship and potentially as a campus leader in extracurricular activities.

Star and Scroll highlights in the 1948-49 school year included a Star and Scroll banquet and a formal dance held on October 24. The scholarship cup, awarded each year to the member house that possesses the outstanding freshman scholarship average, was presented to Farm House Fraternity. At present the organization has plans for the sponsorship of an interfraternity Soap Box Derby to further competitive spirit.

The combined efforts and close cooperation of the members that resulted in a successful banquet and dance are indicative of the interfraternity spirit of fellowship that exists in Star and Scroll.
The University of Illinois Student Veterinary Medical Association was formed in 1948 by the first class of the College of Veterinary Medicine. The association was organized to follow the plan of other student chapters of the American Veterinary Medical Association. A business meeting and a social meeting are held each month. Prominent members of the veterinary and other professional fields speak at each social meeting. Officers are elected each semester.

The objectives of the association are to promote friendly relations among the students who are enrolled in the veterinary curriculum, to provide additional opportunities for members to gain professional knowledge, to demonstrate the virtue of organized effort, and to build character through the censorship of all unworthy actions of its members and the commendation of all worthy deeds. By striving to attain these objectives the society aims to foster and to promote group ethics and to promote friendly group relations.
Terrapin, honorary swimming club, aims to further the interest in swimming and to promote sportsmanship and friendship within the club. Selection for membership is based upon the girls' swimming form, skill, and rhythm.

In its meetings, Terrapin tries to teach the girls organization in the production of a water show, stunts, good form in swimming through demonstration, and knowledge of how to write a good swimming routine.

The highlight of the year is Terrapin's annual water show, given on Mothers Day Weekend in the spring. The associate members aid the major members in producing this show, which portrays costumed musical numbers centering around a main theme. All who are in the production will agree that the value of experience derived from the show far surpasses the hard work, time, and effort given in preparing it.

Besides this climaxing event, there are many other activities which Terrapin sponsors, including Women's Athletic association, the Inter-house Swimming Meet in the fall, and "Guppies," a junior swimming organization under the direction of Mary Butterfield.

Terrapin
Tomahawk

Tomahawk is the activity honorary for recognition of the achievements of independent sophomore men. The fraternity has a fourfold purpose. First of all, it gives recognition to independent men for outstanding work in activities during their freshman year. Next, the organization helps to inspire its members to greater achievements as upperclassmen. Thirdly, it acts as a service organization for the independent students on the campus. Last of all, the fraternity works for stronger bonds of friendship among independent men.

The members of Tomahawk are students who have done exceptional work in various activities. The initiates are chosen by the recommendations of their own particular activity. All of the major activities on campus in which men may participate have representatives in the organization.

The honorary has been active in encouraging independent students to take a part in activities at the University of Illinois for a number of years. However, only recently has it become a national fraternity. At the present time, the local chapter has brother chapters at Indiana University and Purdue University.

In 1862 the Congress of the United States passed and President Lincoln approved the Land Grant College act which provided for donations of public land to the states for the endowment, maintenance, and support of colleges which offered courses in agriculture, the mechanical arts, and military science. Although the State of Illinois formally accepted the act of 1863, it was not until 1868 when the University of Illinois was opened as the Illinois Industrial University that the act became operative in Illinois and a military cadet corps established.

Initially the cadet corps consisted of a single company commanded by a cadet captain. It was not until 1877 that the first regular army officer was detailed to be the commandant of a cadet corps which consisted then of only 198 students. With the passage in 1916 of the National Defense act came the establishment of the ROTC program as it is known today. Except for the periods during the World Wars when special college training programs were in effect, the cadet corps has continued without interruption since its inception in 1868.
Although the present cadet corps is not yet as large as the pre-World War II cadet corps due in large measure to the proportion of veterans on the campus, its strength as of September, 1949 was 2,508 and consisted of nine units of the Arms and Services at Urbana-Champaign and a Medical Corps unit and a Dental Corps unit at Chicago.

The senior officer, as academic head of the department, is Professor of Military Science and Tactics. In the military organization he is Commandant of Cadets. All other officers that are assigned hold appropriate academic and military positions on his staff. The senior officer in each unit is unit director.

As the result of action by the Illinois General assembly a student entering the University with less than a junior standing must, if he is physically fit, pursue a two year basic course in military science. This consists of one year of general training and one of specialized training for a particular branch of the service.

A student successfully completing the advanced course receives upon graduation a second lieutenant's commission in the Organized Reserve corps. If he applies and is found qualified, he may receive a commission in the regular army.
Harold Baker, cadet executive officer

The Military council at the University of Illinois, originally organized in 1929, is a body of student officers which serves as a liaison medium between the commandant and the corps of cadets. Since the members of the Military council are also members of the cadet corps, they represent, to the commandant, the opinion of all the cadets. These opinions are presented to the commandant in the form of recommendations.

The council is composed of the cadet regimental commander, the executive officer, the highest ranking senior cadet from each of the nine branches, and one delegate from each of the three honorary fraternities—Scabbard and Blade, Phalanx, and Pershing Rifles. The cadet regimental commander, M. Clinton Cannon, serves as president of the council, and the executive officer, Harold G. Baker, Jr., as vice-president.

Some of the activities of the council during this past year included co-sponsorship of the Armed Forces Ball, an exhibit at Freshman Activity night, the organization of a rifle match between the various units represented in the Armory, and a basketball and volleyball tournament.

The ROTC rifle team organized this fall with an excellent record of past years behind it and the difficult task of maintaining that record before it. However, these men of the corps were equal to the job at hand. With eight veteran riflemen and eight promising newcomers, the future of the team was assured. Under the capable guidance of Sgt. Clarence Hodge, the team progressed rapidly and entered the winter gallery season prepared for the difficult schedule which lay ahead.

The program consisted primarily of postal matches with growing emphasis being placed upon shoulder-to-shoulder competition. The team joined forces with the University Rifle and Pistol club and entered a varsity team in the newly organized Western Conference competition and the National Intercollegiate Rifle matches. Matches were scheduled at home and away with the surrounding colleges and universities, including participation in the Camp Perry Indoor Matches in Missouri. On the postal scene, matches were fired against schools and colleges from over the nation, including the Hearst National Trophy match, the Fifth Army area match and the National Intercollegiate ROTC match.

Pershing Rifles

Pershing Rifles is a national honorary military society. Company C-3 was installed at Illinois in 1931, and since that time has maintained a much envied reputation of having one of the largest and most active units in the country. Members are elected from basic course cadets in the Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC on the basis of military scholarship, leadership, and ability. The officers of the organization are elected and appointed from the advanced corps members.

Pershing Rifles has many varied activities. It has a rifle team and an excellent drill team which last year took second place in the Third Regimental drill meet. For the past several years, Pershing Rifles has furnished the color guard for football and basketball games, and for various military ceremonies. The drum and bugle corps are often called upon to lead pep rally parades. At least once each year the organization holds an overnight maneuver similar to an actual military combat operation.
Scabbard and Blade

The Illinois members of Scabbard and Blade, a national military honorary organization, are chosen from the cadet officers of the Army, Navy, and Air Force represented on the campus. Its purpose of raising the standard of military training is accomplished by promoting closer cadet officer relationships.

Company F-1 at the University of Illinois was disbanded on May 23, 1943. The company was reinstated on November 26, 1946, after being inactive for a little over three years.

The aims of Scabbard and Blade call for and invite a diversification of activity. Such things as company rifle and pistol teams are taken as a matter of course. These teams compete with teams of other Blade companies as well as various units here on the campus.

The organization has its own social functions including a pledge dance. Here the pledges are honored as they pass through the traditional saber arch with their ladies to receive the Blade pin, symbol of membership and leadership.
With the creation of the United States Air Force as a separate branch in the national military establishment, the Air ROTC was organized at the University of Illinois this year. Academic instruction is under the supervision of the Professor of Air Science and Tactics, Lt. Col. Morris H. Shedd, and an Air Force staff composed of officer and non-commissioned officer specialists.

Air ROTC consists of a four-year program divided into two courses. The basic course may be selected by students who are required by University rules to complete successfully two years of military work. In the advanced course, which is comprised of two years of academic instruction and six weeks of practical training at summer camp, cadets may receive instruction in Air Force administration or aircraft maintenance. Upon satisfactory completion of the advanced program and upon recommendation by the professor of air science and tactics, a student is commissioned as an officer in the United States Air Force reserve.

The Air council was established as the governing body of the Air Force Reserve Officer's Training corps in order to represent the Air Force Cadet Corps in all matters of student interests and participation in military activities. In addition to acting as an advisory group to the AFROTC department, the Air council cooperates with the Military council and Navy council on all military functions, including the Military Forces ball and the Armed Forces day ceremonies.

The council is composed of the cadet colonel and his group staff, the cadet commander of each squadron or his representative, one representative from each of the combined branch military honorary organizations, and an officer of the AFROTC faculty staff who acts as advisor.

The cadet colonel, who is in command of all AFROTC cadets, is chosen from the advance course on a competitive basis. His duties are to administer all policies of the AFROTC and to preside at all Air council meetings.

Summer Camp
On September 22, 1949, the midshipmen of the Naval ROTC returned from the annual summer training cruise. During the summer, some of them visited the Panama Canal and crossed the equator, receiving the accompanying initiation into the mysteries of the Royal Order of Shellbacks, while others received training at Pensacola, Florida, and Little Creek, Virginia.

On returning to the campus, they greeted a new class of plebes. These new midshipmen were a welcome addition to the unit for their presence meant that the NROTC Unit was at a full operating strength of four classes for the first time since its founding in November, 1945. After a brief pause to examine the new training laboratory, complete with 5-inch gun and director, loading machine, torpedoes, mines, rangefinders, and other ordnance equipment, a lot of new ideas for a better unit were put into effect.
A special exhibition drill platoon was created, and to parallel the well designed academic training, a recreational program was in the making. A Navy Council, composed of representatives from each class, was formed to advise and recommend to the professor of naval science on matters relating to N.R.O.T.C. student affairs. An athletic program was devised, and interclass sports events were sponsored.

The Yardarm, the unit's newspaper, resumed publication with an increased staff and plenty of ideas for the year's activities.

The rifle team got down to business fast and held many successful practices and meets. The honors won by the rifle team were a credit to the unit.

These new interests have created a stronger spirit in the unit, developed more pride in the uniform, and kindled a feeling that nothing short of their best efforts are good enough for the fighting Navy.

Athlete of the Year and Conference Medal Winner

For the second consecutive year Dwight "Dike" Eddleman received recognition as Illinois' Athlete of the Year. In addition, Dike finished his stellar career by winning the Conference Medal awarded for outstanding proficiency in both athletics and scholarship.

One of the most versatile Illinois athletes of all time, Dike captained Illinois' 1948-1949 Big Nine Basketball champions from his position at forward, breaking the Illini individual scoring record. He set a new conference punting record from his halfback slot, made the 1948 Olympic team as a high jumper (taking third place at London), and bequeathed the varsity high jump record of six feet 7 3/4 inches.

Dike earned a total of eleven varsity letters during his career at Illinois, an all-time high.

Most Valuable Player

Johnny Karras, one of the greatest sophomore backs in Illinois' football history, received the highest honor his teammates could bestow when they voted him Most Valuable Player of the 1949 football season. This was the first time in history that the honor had fallen to anyone but a senior.

Johnny outfaked and outran eager defensive specialists to set a new conference rushing record of 732 yards. All-Big Ten, all-midwest, and national honors followed swiftly.
Tribe of Illini

The Tribe of Illini is a social organization, founded to better acquaint the lettermen of the varsity sports. It operates to further good relations between the "I" men and the rest of the student body. Membership is limited to those men who have earned a major letter in athletics at the University. New members are elected and initiated after awards are presented in each sport.

The Tribe sponsors a winter formal and a spring formal dance each year. During the football season the Tribe sponsors the showing of the movies of the out-of-town games. Members of the football squad alternated as narrators at the movies.
Cheerleaders

Head cheerleader Ed Lundien’s squad lead Illinois cheering during the 1949-1950 football and basketball seasons. They introduced several new cheers during intermissions of the Indiana game with the lusty cooperation of the football band.

The Block I half-time salute.
A Successful Season

Although critics had rated Illinois’ football prospects of 1949 very low, Coach Ray Eliot and his squad surprised the experts. The Illini fought to the top of the Conference standings before being beaten by mighty Michigan and Ohio State, the team that was to win the 1950 Rose Bowl game. After Illinois tied Iowa State in the first game of the season, grave predictions of a horrible season were made for the Illini. Recovering from this shaky start, the Tribesmen gained strength with each game and finally, when they reached the Michigan contest, led the Conference. But the pre-season favorites, Michigan and Ohio State, downed Coach Eliot’s players in the latter half of the season, and the youths from Illinois dropped to fifth place in the standings. In Conference play, victims of the Tribe’s attacks were Iowa, Purdue, and Indiana. The Illini tied Wisconsin and fell before Michigan, Ohio State, and Northwestern to obtain a record of three wins, three losses, and one tie. The non-conference showing was worse. It consisted of a tie with Iowa State and a loss to Missouri. Tabulating all games in the 1949 football season gives Illinois three wins, four losses, and two ties.
Illinois 20  Iowa State 20

Since Iowa State was a small school, the Illini were expected to defeat State's gridmen. However, Illinois met considerable difficulty due to both Iowa's strength and Illinois' blunders. The first half, featuring poor football, nearly remained scoreless; but Iowa State pushed sixty-three yards to a touchdown and led, 7 to 0, at the end of the second quarter. Striving to correct their first-half mistakes, the Illini in five plays charged fifty-seven yards in the first three minutes of the second half and scored. The game being tied, Iowa again began its offense; but Illinois' Chuck Fox intercepted a pass and ran to State's 27-yard line. Catching Bernie Krueger's fourth-down aerial, John Karras made a 21-yard gain which set up a second Illini tally. However, the Iowans refused to surrender the ball after the kickoff and marched seventy-seven yards to a touchdown. Their failure to add the extra point left the Tribe ahead, 14 to 13. As he was to do many times later in the season, Karras set up another Illinois score with a 44-yard run. But the kick for what would have been the winning point was not good, and Iowa State later tied the game, 20 to 20.
Illinois 13  Wisconsin 13

This year Illinois faced the Badgers for the twenty-sixth time. Because the teams tied, their historical record against each other remains even, with eleven wins for each. The 1949 game started fast. Within the first two minutes Illinois’ John Karras tore forty yards to a touchdown. Soon after, however, the Badgers countered by recovering a fumble in the Illinois end zone. The conversion was good and the game tied. Next, Wisconsin took the lead with a touchdown. Despite the fact that the Badgers outrushed the Illini, Wisconsin got no more touchdowns, for Illinois squelched all enemy drives near the goal. Although the Tribesmen improved during the third quarter, penalties kept them from scoring. In the fourth period, a determined Illini eleven charged to the goal line after a 48-yard pass play from Bernie Krueger to Sam Piazza. Piazza plunged through the line to score on fourth down and tied the game. Four minutes remained in the battle and both teams threw long passes, but all attempts to make the winning touchdown failed. The Illini had played both good and bad football. Their fumbles and penalties remained from the Iowa State game, but at times they had exhibited stamina and skill.
Illinois 20  Iowa 14

Having tied their first two games, the Illini were hungry for a victory at Iowa City. However, football experts had predicted that Iowa would defeat the Tribesmen and break Illinois' long string of victories over the Hawkeyes. The decisive action of the game did not get under way until the second quarter when John Karras ran the ball thirty-four yards for the first touchdown. Soon after, the Iowans retaliated to tie the score. Twice during the same period the Illini drove near the goal posts but fell short of scoring. On a spectacular 63-yard sprint, Karras again scored for Illinois in the third quarter. The final Illini score came early in the fourth period when the Tribe took over the ball in Iowa territory and marched to the one-yard stripe. Sam Piazza crashed over the goal line with the winning points. Later in the quarter the Hawkeyes scored another touchdown, but they could not catch up with the Fighting Illini, who were determined to become a winning football team. The entire Illinois squad showed great improvement over its earlier playing. Particularly outstanding was Karras, who gained 174 yards in rushing, the most that any Illini has made in a single game for several years.
Missouri 27  Illinois 20

In a high scoring contest, Missouri upset Illinois, 27 to 20. This was the Tigers' first victory over a Big Ten team in Don Faurot's twelve years of coaching at Columbia. His Missouri squad took command of the game in the opening minutes by a 49-yard touchdown run through the middle of the Illini line. Minutes later the Tigers scored again after driving forty-four yards in nine plays. Upon receiving the kickoff, the Tribe began a march of its own, but fumbled after gaining twenty-eight yards. In the second quarter Illinois finally broke loose on the offensive. The Illini completed a pass, on interference, and scored from the one-yard line. Later in the quarter Missouri recovered another Illinois fumble and turned its good luck into a touchdown. To open the second-half scoring, John Karras made a spectacular leaping catch of a pass and raced over the goal line. Illinois' next scoring threat was interrupted by a 15-yard penalty, but the Tribe soon got the ball again, and Dick Raklovits raced down seventy yards of sideline for the tying touchdown. Unfortunately for Illinois, the Tigers again came to life and passed their way to the winning touchdown.
Illinois 19 Purdue 0

By defeating Purdue, 19 to 0, the Illini stopped a thirty-six year jinx which had kept them from winning in Lafayette since 1919. Against the Boilermakers, who had held Notre Dame to 378 yards, the Illini gained 420 yards, 391 of these being made by determined ground attack. After a scoreless first half, Illinois drove down the field to a goal early in the third quarter. The drive was sparked by Chris Pagakis, a junior varsity halfback. He scored the touchdown, but the crowd knew only that the Illini had scored, for Pagakis’ name was not on the program. In the fourth quarter, fullback Burt Schmidt exploded through tackle, shook off the line backer, and out-footed three Boilermaker tacklers before being shoved out of bounds on the Purdue seven-yard stripe. Two plays later he plunged over the goal line. Just before the game ended, Illinois drove to the Purdue 33 yard marker from which Don Stevens gained thirteen yards around end. Stevens again took the ball and began the same play. But this time he jumped high in the air and threw a perfect pass to Walt Kersulis, who caught the ball on the one-yard line and stepped into the end zone untouched.
Leaders of the Big Ten

Having completely recovered from early season blunders, the Illini led the Conference after exhibiting steady, winning football in the Iowa and Purdue games. Unlike the 1948 squad, which had used Bernie Krueger’s passes on the offense, this year’s team developed its running attack. John Karras, who was the leading ground gainer of the Big Ten after the Purdue victory, headed a young and fast backfield which prompted many fans to link the 1950 Rose Bowl game and Illinois. But the Tribe’s defensive team, especially pass defense, was in question. Nevertheless, football followers all over the country spoke of the “Fighting Illini.”
With the battle-cry "Win this one for Zup!" Illinois took the field against mighty Michigan, the team favored to win the Big Ten crown for the third successive season. However, the favorite took the victory and Illinois' first place Conference standing before a Bob Zuppke Day crowd of 71,000. The Tribesmen started the game in good form, and midway in the second quarter held Michigan in a scoreless deadlock. Then the Wolverines' Harry Allis made a miraculous one-handed catch and completed a 51-yard touchdown pass. In the third quarter John Karras broke loose and ran fifty-six yards to Michigan's 21-yard line. For a moment it appeared that the game would be tied, but two plays later Ronnie Clark, after driving to the two, was hit hard and dropped the ball. Michigan recovered and Illinois' touchdown march was halted. Later in the game the Tribe pushed to the 14-yard line, but never did the team regain the pep and drive it had shown earlier. In the fourth quarter Michigan scored again to make the final score 13 to 0 in favor of the Wolverines. Generally, the spectators felt that the score did not indicate the battle which the Illini had given "the conquering heroes."
Illinois 33 Indiana 14

The Fighting Illini swamped Indiana and set a new Conference ground gaining record of 552 yards. By gaining 155 yards in twelve carries, John Karras advanced to within forty-six yards of the individual rushing record. Indiana penetrated the Illini defense for only 193 yards, 102 of which were made by passing. Receiving the opening kickoff, the Hoosiers marched sixty-seven yards to score. Seconds before the quarter ended, the Illini tied the count on a bullet pass from Bernie Krueger to Amos Jones. Sam Rebecca added the extra point. Just after the opening of the second quarter, Karras scampered sixty-five yards to set up the second Illini touchdown. Ronnie Clark going over the goal line from the two. Illinois then marched eighty-three yards, and Dick Raklovits finally scored from the 14-yard line. Early in the third quarter, Indiana fumbled and the Tribe recovered on the Hoosier 39-yard line. After two plays, Karras bolted twenty-six yards to a touchdown. Later, the Hoosiers took a partially blocked Illinois kick and capitalized on the Tribe's weak pass defense. In the final period, Don Engels capped a 63-yard drive with a perfect touchdown pass to Chuck Fox. The Illini were on the Indiana two-yard line when the game ended.
You take the high road, and I'll take the low road

Ohio State 30  Illinois 17

During the first three quarters of the Illinois-Ohio State game, two well-matched teams put on a demonstration of rugged football. Illinois opened the scoring in the first quarter. During the second period, Sam Rebecca made a field goal, which gave the Illini a 10-0 lead. Shortly after the kickoff in the second half, the Buckeyes scored their first touchdown and narrowed the Illini lead to three points. Later in the third quarter Ohio scored again, taking the lead, 14 to 10. Ohio’s kickoff after the touchdown set the stage for the day’s most thrilling run. The ball dropped into the capable hands of sophomore halfback John Karras, who began a 95-yard touchdown dash, which put the Tribe in the lead once more. At this point Illinois spirits were high, and so were the chances of an Illini Rose Bowl trip. In the fourth quarter, however, the scent of roses faded from the Illini stands as the Illini bowed before the powerful Buckeye drives. Ohio State in a hectic ten minutes moved to the top of the list of Rose Bowl contenders by scoring two touchdowns and a safety against a game, but completely worn out Illinois team.
The Illini met Northwestern before 67,872 people in the annual Homecoming game. The Wildcats, who early in the season had been predicted strong, later fell unexpectedly in many games but defeated top-rated Michigan. This victory proved their strength, and the Tribe expected a rough fight. Illinois took the kickoff and moved the ball deep into Northwestern territory. The drive was short, however, and so was an attempted field goal. Northwestern then marched to the first touchdown of the day. The score remained 6 to 0 until the third quarter when the Illini spirit finally won out. Taking a pass from Bernie Krueger, Slip Kersulis dashed over the goal line to tie the score. Sam Rebecca made the conversion. Battling to hold the lead, the Illini defense stopped a long Wildcat drive with four minutes remaining in the last period. However, Northwestern's quarterback, Don Burson then made from an angle the first field goal of his career and won the game. This defeat hit the Illini hard, for it was the last Big Ten game for many of the Team's veterans, one of these being fullback Ruck Steger, who had played in every game but one in four seasons of Illinois football.
Looking back over the 1949 football season, Coach Ray Eliot and his team can feel justly proud of their record. During this year the Illini developed one of the country’s better offenses behind two running halfbacks, John Karras, who broke the Big Ten conference individual rushing record, and Ronnie Clark. Beginning with the Michigan game, Karras and Clark were used to great advantage in wide end sweeps. These completely fooled Indiana. Perhaps the only improvement needed in the Illinois offense was in passing.

With veterans like Ruck Steger, Captain Lyle Button, and Lou Levanti on the defensive platoon, the Tribe maintained a stubborn resistance to every foe that it met. Especially in the Michigan game this half of the team showed its worth by holding back the Wolverines’ powerful ground attack during the entire first half.

Next year many of the 1949 lettermen are returning, and Illini fans are looking forward to a football season packed with thrills and victories.
A memorable three-year era in Illinois basketball ended on a foreign court March 4, 1950, when the Illini entered a decisive 69-52 win over Northwestern in Chicago Stadium in their 1949-1950 scorebook. Illinois' defending Big Ten basketball champs didn't repeat as conference titlists, but they were the only Big Ten team to register a win over the new champions, Ohio State's high-scoring Buckeyes. It was only fitting that the abdicating Illini should be the team to put the one black mark on Ohio's 11-1 conference record—a 66-50 drubbing administered in Huff gym, thereby avenging an earlier loss to Ohio State at Columbus.

Illinois compiled an overall season record of 14 wins and 8 losses. Their 7-5 conference record earned a tie with Indiana for third place.

Indiana accomplished what previously had been a pleasant dream to the nation's coaches by managing to defeat the Illini twice in the same season—the first time that had happened since Coach Harry Combes became head basketball coach three seasons ago.

By scoring 787 points in conference play, Ohio State bettered the year-old conference scoring record of 783 points set by the 1948-1949 Illinois champs. But unfortunately for the Buckeyes, Illinois finished their conference season after the Buckeyes were done, and the Illini pushed the record even higher — a brilliant total of 798 points, scored in what many people consider to be the most competitive conference in the nation!

Wally (Ox) Osterkorn, probably Illinois' greatest center of all time, became the second Illini ever to score more than 200 points in one conference season when he placed his 212 points in the records beside the 255 points entered by Andy Philip in 1943. This scoring effort by Ox placed him in third place, behind Don Rehfeldt of Wisconsin and Dick Schnittker of Ohio State, for Big Ten individual scoring honors.

Even better, Ox ran his all-season total to 333 points — breaking Illinois' individual all-season record set just last year by former teammate Dike Eddleman. Ox had an amazing field goal percentage of .406 for the season! Over the last eight games of the conference schedule Ox averaged 22.4 points per game! The squad selected Ox as Illinois' most valuable player of the past season.

Captain Bill Erickson compiled a free-throw percentage of .780, just barely edging Burdette Thurlby for possession of the Ralf Woods trophy. Bill set a new conference free-throw record of 19 straight only to see teammate Don Sunderlage sink his last 20 charity shots of the season without a miss.

During the first weeks of the season, Illinois’ lineup maintained a high degree of flexibility as Coach Combes juggled the lineup among the first ten men in experimenting to find the most consistently smooth working combination. The Butler game brought out the fact that Erickson and Don Sunderlage were slow in regaining the form they displayed the previous season. An injured ankle received in the freshman-varsity game plus several extra pounds slowed Bill’s progress.

Don seemed to be trying too hard and was relegated to sixth man several times. After he loosened up (and perhaps aided by a return to his close-cropped hair cut of his previous sophomore year), Don regained his old form, giving his best proof of it when he ball-hawked, rebounded, and scored 20 big points in the satisfying 66-50 win over Ohio State.

Pirate Thurlby seemed to be operating with springs in his legs all season long, contributing a beautiful job when he patrolled the boards in the second Oklahoma game. It was his defensive rebounding as much as anything else that enabled the Illini to even up their series with Oklahoma, 57-47. Pirate snagged 16 defensive rebounds, one less than half the Illinois total. As a result, Oklahoma's two gigantic centers, Marcus Freiburger (6-11) and Bill Waters (6-6), got only one basket between them and never had a chance to try those murderous tip-in rebound shots.

Rod Fletcher developed into an especially aggressive rebounder and alert all-around floor man during the year. This sophomore's defensive work against Dick Schnittker in the second Ohio State game upset Ohio State and Schnittker so much that Schnittker picked up only 16 points on 6 free throws and 5 baskets (4 layups and a hurried jump shot). Rod and his teammates kept Schnittker from scoring a single field goal in the entire first half!

In the home stretch the starting five question resolved into the combination of Erickson, Osterkorn, Thurlby, Sunderlage, and Fletcher. Roy Gatewood, Van Anderson, Slip Kersulis, Mack Follmer, and Ted Beach stayed close behind the first five and proved to be the necessary sparkplugs at different times during the season. Gatewood had several good nights, especially with his 16 points against Oklahoma at Norman, and against Columbia when he took just 10 shots and hit for 7 baskets! Heavy fouling by the Illinois squad during much of the season required not a 5 but an 11-man first team in actual practice.

In their pre-conference season warmup the Illini played a total of nine games, but only in the second half against Arkansas did they really look like they were playing to the limit of their vast capability. Poor free-throw shooting ended a home floor victory string of nineteen straight games when U.C.L.A. eked a 65-63 win over Illinois during the Christmas holidays. The Illini gained three more wins during the holidays nonetheless — St. Louis, Columbia, and Princeton.

Illinois opened its conference schedule the hard way, losing a hard fought battle to Wisconsin in the opener and a second game to Ohio State.

The Illini earned their first Big Ten win on their home court by beating Purdue, 59-54. Erickson shifted into the pivot when Ox picked up four fouls early in the first half. Working off of the pivot Bill scored most of his 19 point total to lead Illinois scoring. Northwestern fell heavily six days later,
Of the 67 games played in the last three seasons, Illinois has won 50, losing only 17.

76-50. Five days after that Ohio State visited Champaign and absorbed their now famous 66-50 loss.

St. Louis was ready for the Illini in their second encounter of the season. The Billikens piled up a victory margin of 20 points, 62-42.

Returning to conference wars, Illinois visited Minneapolis and bottled Whitey Skoog enough to beat Minnesota by 10 points, 67-57.

Illinois met the tall Hawkeyes from Iowa City — on the dead run. The much shorter Illini had to rely on their speed to stay in the ball game with the Iowa squad, but the game ended 70-65 in favor of taller Iowa.

Big Ten schedule makers decreed that the Illini should meet Indiana just two days after Iowa. The Hoosiers managed to snap the game wide open into that swift fast-break style that they love so well. The Illini tried to run with them, but the effects of the Iowa trip were soon apparent. Coach Combes even rested the first string during the closing minutes of the first half, but to no avail. The Hoosiers just ran and ran, winning 83-72. Indiana also won at Bloomington, 80-66.

Illinois whipped Michigan and then paid Wisconsin back for the Badgers' previous win in Madison. Illini scoring power shoved the Badgers out of a possible first place in the Big Ten, 76-58. Pirate Thurlby punctured Wisconsin’s anti-Osterkorn zone defense by hitting five consecutive long shots in the first minutes of the game. When the Badgers shifted to a man-to-man defense, Ox broke loose to roll up 26 points. Don Rehfeldt was helpless to stop his former Anundsen high school teammate as Ox proceeded to hit from all over the court. Ox&rsquo; masterful ball-handling was never more clearly demonstrated. Credit for the win must also be shared with Rod Fletcher who stopped Rehfeldt offensively.

Erickson, Osterkorn, Thurlby, Anderson, Gatewood, Kersulis, and Fulton played their last game for Illinois when they finished their senior season in that Chicago Stadium triumph over Northwestern. These men, except for Fulton, had been with Harry Combes all the way for three seasons, setting new records, winning the Big Ten crown once, and placing third in the NCAA in 1949. That Northwestern game on March 4, was truly the close of an era.

The point total for these 67 games is 4,573 [an average of 68.2 per game]

Low score wins.
The pre-season predictions for Coach Leo Johnson's 1949 cross country team were very good due to the fact that it had lost only one letterman from the previous year. Among the returning veterans were Bob Downs and Vic Twomey, both of whom were seeking their fourth letters. In the Big Ten conference meet, which was held on the four-mile course at Washington Park, Chicago, the Illinois harriers lived up to these high expectations by finishing in second place behind the pace-setting Badgers of Wisconsin, who retained their conference title. Also in the NCAA meet, won by Michigan State, the new member of the Big Ten, Illinois did well and placed eighth in team standings. Vic Twomey finished 15 out of a field of 131 runners in this race. As for dual meets, of which there were three, the Illini did not thrive on them. The Tribesmen lost to Iowa and Indiana and beat Michigan. Letterwinners this year were Downs, Jewsbury, Lamb, and Twomey.
Spring Sports
INDOOR: Although previously undefeated in one triangular and three dual meets, lack of substantial team balance caused Illinois' 1949 track squad to finish in third place in the 1949 Big Ten championships, just three points behind co-champions Wisconsin and Ohio State.

The Illini opened their indoor season by overpowering Drake, 89-25. Illinois won all but two events, taking all three places in the high and low hurdles, pole vault, broad jump, and shot put.
Top row: Ed Little, Don Moore
Third row: Gerry Johnson, LeRoy Vranek, Herman Waarich, Elmer Hill, trainer; Leo Johnson, coach
Second row: Don Schriefer, Sam Shetzar, Bob Downs, Norman Smith, Bill Buster, captain

Lou Irons, captain-elect
At the Michigan State relays Don Laz and Norm Wasser won firsts in the pole vault and shot put. Laz set a new record with a vault of 14 feet, one-half inch.

Minnesota became the next dual meet victim as Wasser contributed a new dual meet shot put record of 53 feet, 6 inches, to lead the 63-51 win. Three firsts and five seconds by Illinois in a triangular meet with Michigan and Purdue enabled the Illini to edge second place Michigan, 48 1/2-46 1/2. Illinois then finished preparation for the conference indoor meet by sweeping an 80-30 win over the Hawkeyes at Iowa City. Vic Twomey, Wasser, Laz, and Bob Hinkle set four of six new meet records—in the mile run, shot put, pole vault, and high hurdles, respectively.

Illinois entered the conference meet with a perfect season record, although these victories were earned by sheer depth rather than by a wealth of individual standouts. Captain Bill Buster, sprint and 440 specialist, competed in the meet, but was far from winning form because of illness and the consultant inactivity over much of the season. Highjumper Dike Eddleman was absent because of his duties as basketball captain.

Despite these handicaps, Illinois took third place with 35 points gathered from Wasser's shot put title, Laz's three-way tie for first in the pole vault.
and second place efforts by Lou Irons in the high jump and Twomey in the two-mile run. Bob Downs picked up a third in the mile, and Bill Downey finished third in the 880. Harry Andersen tied for third in the high jump.

Laz and Wasser closed Illinois’ indoor competition by scoring firsts in the Purdue relays. Wasser heaved the shot for a 52 feet, 4½ inch mark, while Laz set a new relays record by vaulting 14 feet, 1½ inches — his best mark of the indoor season.

OUTDOOR: Dike Eddleman rejoined Wasser and Laz as a first-place winner in the outdoor season. Dike tied for the high jump crown at the Drake relays in Des Moines, jumping 6 feet, 6¾ inches. Wasser gained a win with his shot put effort of 52 feet, 9¾ inches, while Laz tied for first place in the pole vault at 14 feet even.
Just prior to the Des Moines trip Illinois was host to Iowa, Northwestern, and Chanute Field in a relay meet at Champaign. No points were awarded, but Illinois won seven of eight special events and three of six relays.

Illinois then defeated Purdue 76-55, and then dropped a 67 1/2-64 1/2 affair to Michigan — Illinois' first dual meet loss in two years. The Illini grabbed 13 firsts in those two meets with Eddleman setting a new Ferry field record at Ann Arbor with his leap of 6 feet, 6 3/4 inches in the high jump.

In the Big Ten Outdoor meet at Evanston, Dike was Illinois' only champion, jumping 6 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Illinois finished fourth in the team totals with 35 points, just one point behind third place Wisconsin. Minnesota took first with 49 points, and Ohio State came in second.

Coach Johnson's squad failed to repeat as team champion in the Central Collegiate championships in Milwaukee, but won three firsts and set a new record anyway. Eddleman turned in a first with his mark of 6 feet, 6 3/4 inches in the high jump, Wasser again took the shot put, and Don Laz set a new meet and Illinois outdoor records with a vault of 14 feet, 1 3/4 inches.

Twomey, Laz, and Eddleman helped the Big Ten defeat the Pacific Coast conference at Berkeley, California, as the Big Ten pulled an upset to maintain its superiority in the annual interconference clash. Laz again found himself in a three-way tie for first in the pole vault at 14 feet, and Twomey tied for third in the two-mile run. Eddleman won the high jump at 6 feet, 4 inches — the same height that had given him fourth place in the N.C.A.A. meet in Berkeley, California, just three days previously.

Vic Twomey polished off Illinois' 1949 season by winning the Junior AAU 10,000 meter run at the National AAU Championships in Fresno, California.

Illinois won one triangular and four dual meets while dropping one dual meet during the entire 1949 track season. In Western Conference championship meets the Illini placed third and fourth, indoor and outdoor, respectively. Throughout the year Illinois scored 58 firsts in overall competition.

* Played tie game.
After leading the Conference for half of the season, the Illini baseball squad faltered and fell to fifth place. Since many of Illinois' 1948 co-championship team had been lost through graduation, critics expected little of the Illini in 1949. But the team members held a more optimistic opinion of their talents and hastened to prove themselves by winning their first five games, three of these being Conference duels. On the strength of their early triumphs, the Illini held the lead in the Big Ten race while tying their second game with Minnesota and splitting the Iowa tilts. However, Michigan knocked them out of first place with a pair of decisive defeats. Stunned from the Wolverines' battering, the Illini attacked Indiana and lost both the second game of the series and their championship hopes. In their next stand they lost the opener to Ohio State but fought bitterly to defeat the Buckeyes in the second contest, which was the last of the season for the Tribe. In non-conference competition, Illinois played Washington University of St. Louis, two minor league ball clubs—the Danville Dodgers and the Rockford Rox—and Notre Dame. Losing to Danville and Notre Dame, the Illini established their complete 1949 record at nine wins, eight losses and one tie.

Illinois 7-9

Washington 2-6

In a very successful debut, Illinois' co-Big Ten champions walloped Washington University twice, by scores of 7 to 2 and 9 to 6. Beginning in a pitchers' duel, the first game remained tied at 1 to 1 through the sixth inning. In the seventh and ninth innings the Illini batters broke loose with three-run attacks to swamp the Bears. Illinois broke an early 1-1 tie in the second game with a four-run third frame, during which all nine Blue-and-Orange batters journeyed to the plate. Washington fought back with three tallies in the fifth and two in the seventh to make the score 7 to 6. However, the Illini again showed the strength of their bats and scored two insurance runs on a single with the bases loaded in the eighth.
Illinois 6-2 Northwestern 0-1

To open its 1949 conference season, Illinois trimmed the Wildcats in a twin bill. In the first game Ruck Steger and Herb Plews led Illini batters as the Tribe pushed three runs across the plate in the first three innings and blasted three more across in the eighth. Perhaps the most pleasant factor of this game for the Illini was the fine pitching which Alby Plain displayed throughout the contest. Horace Tangman, another pitcher, starred in the second game. By holding the cats to three hits, he endured nine innings of a terrific pitchers’ duel before Fred Ballantine set up the winning tally with a triple in the ninth. Tangman continued his fine mound work during the rest of the season and proved to be the Illini’s best pitcher.

Illinois 7-4 Minnesota 2-4

Again displaying its offensive punch, Illinois handed Minnesota a decisive drubbing in the first game of the week end stand. Although the Illini sluggers had a field day, pitcher Tangman held the spotlight by striking out twelve of the opposing batters. Apparently enraged by the ease with which they were handled on the first day, the Gophers struck hard Saturday. They scored in a three-run first inning and in the fourth, but the Illini tied the game in the third and again in the seventh on a long triple by Ruck Steger. In the eleventh inning Minnesota staged an attack which landed three men on the bases with none out. Pitcher Stan Feldman then neatly retired the side before the umpire called the game a draw because of darkness.

The stretch and strain of sport
Danville 7  Illinois 5

Taking advantage of a practice game, Coach Wally Roettger experimented with new talent against the Danville Dodgers, a minor league club. The two teams used thirty-four players in the battle, nine pitchers being included. The Illini began with a powerful three-run first inning but soon fell behind the pace when the Dodgers scored two counters in the third frame and four in the fourth. Fighting back, Illinois scored in the fourth and ninth but failed to catch the Dodgers. Hank Anderssohn hit the Tribe’s only long blow, a double, in the first inning.

Illinois 0-13  Iowa 3-12

Inability to hit with men on the bases led Illinois to their first Conference defeat. Although Stan Feldman held the Iowans to one hit, he issued four walks, an intentional pass, and the fatal hit all in one inning. That inning gave the Illini their first Conference defeat. Iowa surged ahead in the second game with a six-run second frame and a three-run seventh. However, the Illini were not to be upset twice and blasted their way back into the game with seven runs in the eighth on a barrage of singles and a grand slam home run by John Neal John Kopka tripled to bring Ruck Steger home with the winning marker in the ninth inning.

Illinois 16  Rockford 8

In another practice fray with a minor league team, the Illini clouted their way to victory. To beat the Rockford Rox, 16 to 8, the Tribesmen pounded nineteen hits, including home runs by Gus Skizas, Hank Anderssohn, and Glen Trugillo. Although the Rox first took the lead, 2 to 0, on runs in the first two innings, Illinois leaped ahead with a five-run blast in the last half of the second frame. Again the Rox forged into the lead via a pair of tallies in the third and fourth.
Here the Illini took control with Herb Agase as relief pitcher and held Rockford to two more runs while they themselves opened a four-run fifth inning. Illinois continued belting the ball and tallied five more runs in the next three innings. Agase gave a great relief performance by fanning nine men and allowing but three hits in seven innings. Two batters who contributed greatly to the bombardment were Herb Plews and Hank Anderssohn, both of whom collected a hit for each trip to the plate.

Notre Dame 6-5 Illinois 1-1

Renewing an age-old rivalry, Notre Dame and Illinois met on the diamond in two games, and the Irish trounced the Illini both times. The games began as pitchers duels and turned into routs in the later innings when the Fighting Irish burst into the run column. Committing four errors in the first battle, Illinois fielders aided their opponents greatly. Horace Tangman, who suffered his first loss of the season, pitched the Tribe to a 1-1 tie until the eighth inning of the second game. The Notre Dame left-handed moundsmen effectively stopped Illinois' once potent bats to carry on the traditional left-handers' jinx.

This series was the turning point of the season for the Illini. Rocking from the Notre Dame defeat, they fell before Michigan in the next two games and never again neared the Conference lead.
Michigan 8-8   Illinois 3-6

Again stopped by left-handed pitching, the Illini yielded twice to Michigan. In the two battles, Illinois was hindered by insufficient hitting, fielding errors, and wild pitching. Both Stan Feldman and Horace Tangman, ace Illini hurlers, fell before the Wolverines' bats. After losing the first game by a wide margin, the Tribesmen attacked hard in the early frames of the second encounter and led Michigan, 6-0, in the fourth inning behind Tangman. But the Wolverines, aided by three Illinois errors, scored in every succeeding inning and compiled eight winning runs.

Illinois 8-1   Indiana 5-9

Illinois' power burst out during the first game of the Indiana series, but the Hoosiers exploded in the second tift and defeated the Tribe. The Illini power which gained the first victory was a home run by Herb Plews, triples by Ruck Steger and Hank Anderssohn, and doubles by Steger and Anderssohn. In the second game Indiana scored four runs in the first inning on three walks, an error, and a hit batsman. Illinois bats apparently had worn out in the first fray for the Illini never again approached the Hoosiers.

Illinois 3-12   Ohio State 7-7

After being squelched by Pete Permi and Ohio State in the opening duel, the Tribe batters finally took command of the second. The first game was Permi's third victory over Illinois. Ruck Steger, who never before had got a hit off the Ohio ace, pounded out a single and two doubles. With the two-base blows he raised his 1949 total above the modern Conference record for the most number of doubles in one season. The Illini paced the Buckeyes in the second game with doubles and triples until the seventh inning, when Ohio took the lead, 7-6. In the eighth, persistent Illinois bats tallied six runs before the game was stopped by the umpire because of rain.

Since two leading pitchers and the three leading batters will return, Illinois' baseball outlook for 1950 is bright. Horace Tangman and Herb Agase are the returning hurlers. Behind 1949 averages of .373, .354, and .305, respectively, Ruck Steger, Herb Plews, and John Neal are the team's leading hitters. Steger was elected Most Valuable of the 1949 squad, and Plews will be captain of the 1950 team.

A lack of consistency and a lack of depth handicapped the 1949 swimming team. Coach Ed Manley's squad trounced De Paul in the opener but faltered against Iowa State and Wisconsin. Illinois was the definite underdog against Iowa State, but they lost to a determined Badger team by a narrow margin. In the following meet with Washington University in St. Louis, the Illini made a complete sweep of all eight events.

After four straight victories, Don Clooney's undefeated streak ended when he lost to Keith Carter, Purdue captain and one of the outstanding breast strokes in the conference. Despite top performances by Captain Don Scherwat and Clooney, the most consistent point winner, the Illini compiled a record of two wins and five losses, losing to Indiana and Northwestern also.

The Illinois varsity fencing squad led by Coach Max Garret and Captain Andy Lucas finished a very successful 1949 season with seven wins and two losses in nine dual meets. Since the majority of the team were veterans, the Illini had been predicted to conquer most of their foes. Starting strongly, the Illinois swordsmen outclassed most of their opponents and continued winning all through the season. Only Notre Dame and Ohio State defeated the Tribesmen.

In the conference meet held at Navy Pier, Chicago, the Illini repeated their excellent performance of the preceding year by placing second. From the beginning the meet was between Illinois and Ohio State with Ohio finally taking the upper hand and first place by two points. Northwestern and Wisconsin were the only other schools that participated in the Conference Fencing Meet.

Illinois' season ended with a trip to West Point, New York, for the N.C.A.A. meet. Here the Illini met considerable difficulty from the Eastern schools in which fencing is considered a major sport. However, Illinois managed to make a good showing and captured tenth place. The only Western school able to better our performance was Ohio State, which had stopped the Illini at every meeting during the season.

In dual meets before the Big Ten tournament, Coach Newt Law's wrestlers made an enviable showing on the mats. Losing only to Iowa State Teachers College, they established their season's record at six wins, two losses, and one tie. However, the Illini matmen fared worse in the Big Ten tournament and dropped behind four teams, three of which they had beaten in dual meets earlier in the season. Although no Illini won any of the NCAA championships, the Illinois team gained tenth place in the NCAA wrestling tournament, held at Colorado A. & M., Colorado Springs, Colorado. Wayne Gaumer was the only Illini to survive the quarterfinal round of the NCAA meet, and he fell in the following round.
Tennis

Hindered by inexperience, Coach Howie Braun's 1949 tennis squad completed the season with two wins and three losses. After winning over Iowa, the squad lost to Michigan State, the first home dual meet loss in four years. Illinois lost the next two matches to Wisconsin and Michigan respectively, but rallied to finish the season with a win over highly favored Northwestern. Illinois tied with Ohio State for fifth place in the Big Nine meet.

Captain Dave Brown and Roger Little were Coach Braun's only returning lettermen. Five men with no varsity experience were used to plug the gaps left by graduation.

Coach Ralph Fletcher's 1949 golfers started the season with four returning lettermen, led by Captain Dave Logan. The season's record shows eight dual meet losses and a triangular meet loss to Ohio State and Michigan at Ann Arbor. In a later meet at Indianapolis, the Illini topped their hosts, Indiana, but lost to Purdue and Ohio State. The Illinois squad then finished the season by taking ninth place in the Big Nine meet at Ann Arbor.

Charles Pond's first season as head gymnastics coach was almost a perfect one. A combination of six lettermen and several outstanding sophomores led the 1949 team to five victories out of six meets. Hindered by injury and ineligibility, the squad lost its opening encounter but came through the remainder of its dual and triangular contests as the victors. In the Big Ten meet, Illinois finished second, losing to Minnesota by only one point. This was the third successive year that the Gophers had captured the conference crown. Even though Illinois' team failed to win a championship, two Illini obtained individual honors. These were Jack Sharp, first in the flying ring, and Joe Calvetti, who retained his title of high bar king. In the NCAA meet, held in Berkeley, California, the Illini placed third, again being edged out by Minnesota, which took second standing by virtue of a one-half point advantage. The only Illini to place in the NAAU meet were Joe Fina, third in tumbling, and Gay Hughes, second in trampoline. Sophomore Frank Dolan was elected most valuable player of the season.
Intramural Sports
Again during 1949-50, Illinois' Department of Intramural and Recreational sports has received nationwide recognition for offering the students one of the finest IM programs in existence. This program is sponsored by the Athletic Association and organized and conducted by a crew of eighteen student managers. Led this year by George Landis and Ted Tedford, co-senior managers, and an office staff of five under the faculty direction of Allen B. Klingel, they have sponsored forty-eight varied events. The department is composed of two major divisions: the Intramural sports program, which is highly competitive, and the Recreational sports service, which is composed of non-competitive activities and informal competitive sports. Both programs provide vigorous and wholesome competition as well as healthful recreational activities in all types of sports. They give the average male student a chance to participate in competitive athletics, afford a natural and welcome relief from the daily classroom and study routine, and help to maintain the individual's recreational welfare and health. In addition, the program has become an important part of the University's campus life. The department provides a means for fraternity and independent houses to compete actively in athletics on an organized basis and creates healthy rivalry along with the spirit of fair play and sportsmanship.
Fraternities take great pride in their IM victories, and trophy awards for the championships are cherished. However, even more coveted is the giant trophy awarded to the fraternity with the highest point total achieved in participation during the year.

This year marked the beginning of a full-scale recreational program that was designed to stand on its own and operate as an equal to the vast IM program. Because of their highly competitive nature, intramural sports provide opportunities for achievement only to athletes and teams that are above average. The recreational and co-recreational programs furnish fun and exercise. The only eligibility rule is that the participants must be associated with the University in some way. This year, in basketball alone, seven recreational tournaments were sponsored. There were the law student, navy, military units, fraternity pledge, faculty, Hillel, and general student tournaments in which 162 teams participated. Because they eliminated the strain of serious competition, the recreational tournaments were very popular during the year.

Co-recreational sports, in which teams are composed of both boys and girls, also increased in number and popularity during 1949-50. Guided by the Co-recreational council, and climaxed by a picnic in May for all the participants, the program provided social interest as well as fun and relaxation.

The IMREC Board is the policy-making group guiding IM and recreational sports. There are also organizations of the house IM managers and a protest board to make decisions concerning disputes over games. All told, there were 1480 teams with 13,395 men and women participating in IM sports last year. The gymnasiums and swimming pools of Huff and Old Men's gymnasium, the football stadium, and University high school are offered to students for athletic supervision and recreational hours seven days a week. Thus, it is clear that the IM program is broad in its scope of activity not only in view of the great number of people directly involved but also in respect to the extensive utilization of facilities and the thousands of participating students. Illinois can well be proud of its intramural program of athletic activities.
Women's Athletics
Any woman successfully completing one sport season may join W.A.A. The school year is divided into three sports seasons, each of which has three or four sports. The W.A.A. offers a complete and continual sports program throughout the year to the women students on campus. Its goal is to promote good sportsmanship in addition to physical fitness.

In order to reach the interests of as many women as possible, these sports are among those offered: softball, basketball, badminton, table tennis, fencing, swimming, hockey, tennis, archery, soccer, bowling, apparatus work, and volleyball.

President Virginia Metzler is assisted by an executive board of Mary Palcheff, vice-president; Joy Biska, secretary; Jessie Fujita, treasurer; Mildred Tupper, sports chairman; Betty Smith, publicity chairman; Bernadette Longawa, co-recreation chairman; and Frances Falcon, Terrapin advisor. This board and Miss Joyce Booker, faculty advisor, directs all functions of the W.A.A.
Award winners - Top row: Carolyn Krayhill, Mildred Kechtner, Juanita Meeusen, Joy Biske, Melba Frank, Joanne McCartney, Mary Patchett, Georgia Paldow.

The P.E. Major Club functions to promote social and professional advancement of women majoring in physical education. Each year the club sponsors interclub panel discussions on the problem of individual advancement in the profession. For the special benefit of the students of the School of Physical Education and any of the interested public, the club sponsors demonstrations by experts in such fields as modern dance, folk dancing, and gymnastics.

The club also holds a series of tournaments in competitive team sports, in which both student members and faculty participate. Six teams compete for the all-around sport championship. These activities bring closer unity to the women in physical education and help maintain proficiency in sport skills.

President Melba Frank’s executive board consists of Lorraine Frezza, vice president; Sally Mammen, secretary; Jane Herzberger, treasurer; Georgia Pahlow, senior representative; Verna Krausz, junior representative; Frances McGovern, sophomore representative; and Mary Crackel, freshman representative. Faculty supervisors are Miss Joyce Baker and Miss Nancy Houston.

Americans are born with a wealth that money can't buy. No matter whether we are reared in mansions or log cabins, we inherit man's greatest treasure—the silver spoon of freedom!

Freedom is everywhere in America. Poor youngsters can and do become rich and famous men. Folks speak the truth as they see it because opinion is molded by the public rather than by politicians. Freedom of worship and freedom from fear are accepted as a matter of course in a country bossed by the people.

Unfortunately, freedom isn't free. General Washington and his men made the down-payment at Valley Forge and Yorktown. For almost two hundred years, brave men have met the installments with sweat and blood. But keeping our land free is no task for heroes alone—"Freedom is everybody's job!"

You strengthen America and make it more productive by mastering your job and giving a few extra licks to your daily tasks. You show your faith in the American way when you take time to vote in local as well as national elections. You make democracy work when you respect your neighbor's right not only to disagree with you, but to have his say.

Don't be content with flying the colors on Flag Day and parading on the Fourth of July—help to make our democracy a living, working reality 365 days of the year. We have inherited priceless freedom; as long as we keep it, the poorest of us is rich!

America's "Best-Dressed" praise ELGIN styling!

Lord and Lady Elgins are priced from $67.50 to $1,000. Elgin DeLuxe from $45.00 to $67.50. Other Elgins as low as $29.75, including the Federal Tax.

Lord Elgin and Lady Elgin

"The new Elgins... they're beautiful, beautiful!"

"Young people will go for Elgin's youthful designs."

"Such good taste and fashion correctness!"

"Distinguished" is my word for their styling.

Extra pride of possession for every new Elgin owner! Extra pride for everyone who gives an Elgin! Elgins are styled by Henslee—styled with such distinction that they are worn and praised by America's "best-dressed" men and women!

And the thrill of owning an Elgin is much deeper than beautiful styling. There's that extra measure of dependability—such notable technical advances as the DuraPower Mainspring. This is the most dependable power for accurate timekeeping ever put into a watch!

More satisfaction... more value for your money when you buy an Elgin! The proof is at your jeweler's, in all his Elgin models.

"The proof is at your jeweler's, in all his Elgin models."
Everywhere you look there's a Block & Kuhl store and the door of each store is open to you . . . the Graduating Class of 1950

Yes, Block & Kuhl has the welcome mat out for the youth of today . . . because we believe, as we always have, in the need for new blood, new ideas, new people. The retail business is built on people, not machines, and the need for ambitious, aggressive youth is endless. And it's a complex business, with a place for every type and talent . . . sellers, buyers, accountants, advertisers, artists . . . all are needed to create the great merchandising operation that brings the goods of the world to the retail consumer.

Just as B & K has grown and expanded from a small beginning, so too may the young man or woman who stands on the threshold of a new career grow and expand.

Block & Kuhl Company congratulates you . . . opens its doors wide . . . to heartily welcome bright futures of tomorrow . . . the Graduating Class of 1950!
